The WEEK

By A. M. Brayton

SOMEONE exploded a bomb in Wall street last week. Thirty-five are dead and hundreds injured.

Perhaps some individual madman did the job. Reading too much "free speech" in revolutionary publications makes cranks dangerous.

Government officials share the opinion of Detective Burns that the crime was a continuation of the "mail bomb" plot of last winter. When the man Fischer, arrested in Canada, tells how he came to predict the explosion, perhaps officials will be put on the trail of the murderers.

Over in Italy workmen continue to seize industrial plants and operate them. The Italian government is seriously considering legally giving the workers "a voice in management". The property owners cry "confiscation", and the union leaders declare they will retain the entire voice in management. Italy believes workmen must be interested in business to make it pay in the future.

There is a connection between what has happened in Russia, and the new Italian departure. There is a connection between both and the Wall street explosion. Both are outgrowths of the same "unrest". The San Francisco bomb outrage had the same parentage.

We live in a time of distorted views. The public takes sides, one way or the other, with the two self-interested groups which are fighting over the world's soapbone. We all live on business, and are interested in its output. "The public" is defined as everybody not a participant in a given public dispute. Some day the public will learn that neither side to a selfish quarrel is entirely right, and that when the issue concerns the general welfare, citizens not included in the interested groups must intervene to insist upon the happy medium, or suffer the consequences.

Senator Wilcox has given up the idea of a meeting of defeated gubernatorial candidates, to select an independent to oppose Blaine. Of course this is the wisest course. Defeated candidates who didn't get together and select a single candidate "for the good of the cause" when such elimination would have meant certain success, could look rather funny in an elimination conference now. Locking the barn after the horse is stolen, as it were. Blaine won fairly. No fraud is charged. He is the republican nominee. Republicans may "boli" him on account that he has "bolted" republican candidates, and no doubt there will be bolting on both sides, but the figures are that those who would vote for an independent candidate will vote for Blaine's democratic opponent. Anyway, it looks like a big republican year, and if Mr. Blaine will doff his hat in a friendly bow to the state boss republicans who have ardently fought him may find it expedient to discover that he has no horns.

About that Maine thing, with which republicans are delighted, have you ever thought of the fact that there the women voted for the first time in the original prohibition state? Perhaps Cox's reputation as a "wet" has really become an issue. The returns from New Jersey will throw more light on the matter.

Colonel McCoy, democratic nominee for governor, is quoted in the Milwaukee Journal as saying that he will "vote every class and bankruptcy law that they (the Nonpartisan leaguers) can get from the obnoxious legislature which they have passed in North Dakota."

As we understand it, the bulk of the North Dakota legislation has been declared constitutional by the supreme court of the United States. If so, it can hardly be "class", although it might be "thanksgiving". Somehow, it looks it would be better for a candidate for governor to wait until special measures were before him requiring his veto. The North Dakota legislation may be all bad, but more likely it is part good and part bad, after the manner of most legislation. Whoever is elected governor will have a bridge to cross, but it will not be reached until 1921.

When Cox first produced his "all-honest sheet" for republican campaign contributions, Republican Chairman Hays was quoted as saying that it was a "fake", and that someone had "put one over on Cox". The congressional investigation showed that Cox was substantially right, and Hays has fallen back upon the defense that the allotments were placed high in the hope that the percentage of actual contribution would make up a reasonable working fund for the committee. It would have been better to have said so frankly in the first place. Both committees are raising sinews of war, and neither can do without them. There was nothing to hide. Indeed, despite the fact that he has substantially established his case, the reaction to Cox's declamation seems to be a general impression that Cox's idea of a presidential campaign was derived from the First ward, Dayton, O.

FIRST PHOTOS OF WALL STREET EXPLOSION

NEW YORK.—This photograph showing the scene of the terrific explosion in Wall street was snapped a few minutes after the blast. The wrecked automobile in the foreground is shown just as it was found after the explosion. The crowds are watching the police clearing away debris, questioning spectators and caring for the wounded. On the right, with the pillars, is the United States sub-treasury building and in front the statue of George Washington, which was undamaged. The Morgan company building is just outside the photograph on the left, across the street from the sub-treasury.

As an indication of the force of the explosion, part of the wagon that is supposed to have contained the explosives, was blown to the thirty-eighth floor of the Equitable building, where the Bankers' club has its dining room.

WILSON KICKS IN WITH A DONATION TO CAMPAIGN FUND

Offers Five Hundred Dollars as Private in the Ranks for the Party Cause

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—A $500 contribution to the democratic national campaign fund was received here today from President Wilson, who wrote that he was offering the money as a "private in the ranks."

The text of the president's note, as given out by W. W. Marsh, democratic national treasurer, was as follows:

"May I not, as a private in the ranks, give myself the pleasure of contributing the inclosed to the expenses of the democratic campaign? I feel very deeply that the very honor and destiny of the nation are involved in this campaign, and that I and all citizens who love its honor and covet for it a high influence in the world should contribute to the success of the candidate who stands for the re-establishment of our position among the nations."

The contribution was accepted, National Chairman White declaring it "welcome and needed from a financial standpoint."

CAPITOL WILL MAKE HILL LOOK LIKE SHE'S BACKING UP SAYS CAPTAIN LAW, ACCEPTING DEFI

IF Captain Wilcox, pilot of the G. W. Hill, wants to test out his skill as a wheelsman and his boat's speed against the Capitol, he has his chance. So says Captain Archie Law of the Capitol.

Captain Law just got back to La Crosse after laying up his craft at Dubuque for the winter, and the first thing he ran into when he got home was talk of the defi hurled at his steamer by Captain Wilcox. In proper sailor-fashion, thereupon, Captain Law hastened to make answer.

WILL RACE IF STAKE IS ENOUGH

"If Captain Wilcox", he wrote to the Tribune and Leader-Press, "knows of someone who has a lot of money he wants to lose, I have no doubt a race could be arranged for the coming season provided the stakes were large enough."

Incidentally, he is just as certain as was Captain Wilcox that his boat has the legs of its rival.

"If the two ever get together", declared Captain Law," the Capitol would go by so fast you would think the Hill was backing up."

And then, just to make it good, Captain Law went on and made a few remarks about the incident which gave rise to the challenge and the whole controversy. This it will be remembered, arose when the Hill got lodged on a wing-dam in the Mississippi during a fog while carrying an excursion of the state convention of doctors, and was passed by the Capitol. Later the Hill landed her passengers on Isle la Plume. Says Captain Law:

"Maybe the reason for the Hill's landing the doctors on Isle la Plume the night of their excursion, instead of following the Capitol in, was because she is so fast they were afraid of running over the Capitol. So rather than take a chance, they let their passengers hike it from Isle la Plume, some of them arriving home at breakfast time, while the Capitol landed her crowd at the foot of Main street."

Here is Captain Law's letter:

Editor Tribune:

I noticed the article and editorial in your paper of recent date regarding a revival of the old steamboat days, and a proposed race between the steamers G. W. Hill and the "Capitol." The idea is a good one, and I think we would all welcome the return of the old steamboat days when we had two or three packets a week each way. But in regard to the race, I am afraid you will have to match the Hill with some other boat besides the "Capitol." The "Capitol", formerly the "Dubuque", was always conceded to be one of the fastest on the river, a distinction the Hill never has had, and if the two ever got together, the "Capitol" would go by so fast, you would think the Hill was backing up. If Capt. Wilcox knows of someone who has a lot of money he wants to lose, I have no doubt a race could be arranged for the coming season, provided the stakes were large enough.

Maybe the reason for the Hill's landing the doctors on Isle la Plume the night of their excursion, instead of following the "Capitol" in, was because she is so fast they were afraid of running over the "Capitol", so

DE PALMA MAKES RECORDS

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 18.—Ralph De Palma established three new world's records on an oval dirt track at the state fair here today. In a ten mile race he set a figure of 7:47, against the old record of 7:56:40; for a twenty mile stretch the official time was 16:08:98, against 16:25:66, the old record. A new fifty mile record of 40:49:69, against 40:58.

A PROCLAMATION

To the Citizens of La Crosse, Wis., Greetings:

Whereas the La Crosse Interstate Fair association will hold its annual fair in the city of La Crosse on September 21, 22, 23, 24, 1920, and

Whereas the officers of said fair have completed all arrangements to accommodate the visitors and to entertain them and instruct them, and

Whereas we have assurance that the 1920 fair will be the best one ever held by this progressive association, by reason of an unusually large and attractive collection of high class exhibits, and

Whereas every possible effort has been made to make the exhibits representative of the vast resources of this locality and surrounding country both as to livestock and harvested crops, and

Whereas the La Crosse Interstate fair is rendering the state and adjacent territory a special service in educational lines, and encouraging the natural industries of our vicinity, adding to them much material wealth and broadening knowledge, as to the great possibilities for individual gain, and

Whereas said fair is conducted with no thought of profit to its officers and stockholders, and that the management has but one idea controlling, which is to acceptably serve, and to administer the business of said association in a manner to best distribute the benefits accruing to the general public, and

Whereas the United States government and the Wisconsin state officials have approved of said fair and its policy and plan, and

Whereas, in the opinion of the mayor, the fair to be held in our city will result in great good to our citizens, and believing all enterprising citizens will benefit by attendance, now

Therefore I, Arthur A. Bentley, mayor of the city of La Crosse, Wis., do hereby direct and invite all our citizens to attend said fair, if possible on Tuesday, September 21st, and, if not on this (La Crosse day) then on a later date.

Signed and sealed in the executive offices at the city hall, on this 18th day of September, 1920.

WORK FOR REPEAL OF ESCH-CUMMINS ACT IN CONGRESS

Railroad Organizations Laboring to this End With Defeat of Congressman Esch

BY BETTY PRUETT FARRINGTON

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The railroad labor organizations now see in the Wisconsin delegation to the next congress the nucleus of a strong movement for the repeal of the Esch-Cummins act with the consequent advance of the Plumb Plan league. They were willing to take full credit for the defeat of Representative John J. Esch of La Crosse, as evidenced by a statement by former Representative Edward Keating, chairman of the national campaign committee of the railroad labor organizations.

"The defeat of Congressman Esch," Mr. Keating said, "is particularly gratifying to us. The fight was open and above board on the issue of the Esch-Cummins railroad act. The entire result in Wisconsin is gratifying, although we failed to defeat Senator Lenroot for renomination. We be-

SUNSHINE HOME DIRECTORS APPEAL FOR HELP TO MEET MOUNTING COST OF LIVING

WHO will lend a hand to the Sunshine Home?

An appeal was Saturday addressed to La Crosse citizens by directors of the Home for the Friendless—more affectionately known among members of the "family" as the Sunshine Home—for assistance in meeting the ever mounting costs of all that goes to maintain the ordinary home. The directors express appreciation for the support accorded the Home by regular subscribers, but point out the need for repairs, improvements and additions to the Home which make necessary an enlarged circle of contributors to meet the added expense.

The Home for the Friendless is all that its name indicates, and more, and that it is a real home is vouched for by a recent addition to the family circle—an old lady who, though a home is open to her with her son, prefers to remain because, "I'm happy here". Other newcomers to the home include two young children, twice orphaned, whose adopted parents died of flu within a short time after taking the children into their homes; and two other children whose mother must work for a living and has no place where she can care for her little ones herself. To all of these, and many others, the Home for the Friendless is a real friend.

The appeal of the directors to the generosity of La Crosse citizens is as follows:

During the past year the Home for the Friendless has spent the sum of $4,714.67. With this amount it has maintained its building and equipment and housed and fed an average of six elderly women and twenty-five young children. Both the building and equipment are in need of repairs, improvements and additions and the Home should be in position to take care of additional women and children. None of these things can be done adequately without additional income.

We believe the figures show for themselves that the institution is managed with great economy. We therefore trust that you can see your way clear to giving us a liberal subscription. Please send check or money to M. Van Steenwyk, treasurer, 237 South Eleventh street.

FAIR PROMISES TO BE BEST IN LOCAL HISTORY

Experts Say Races Will be the Fastest Since Days of Old Neumeister Race Meetings

SECRETARY AND OFFICIALS IN GROUND HEADQUARTERS

Exhibitors Getting Ready for Grand Opening Tuesday Morning

THE 1920 Interstate fair promises to be the best exhibition of its kind in the history of the local fair association.

Experts maintain that the racing program that has been arranged by Secretary C. S. Van Auken will be one of the fastest in the history of the track and some of the best blood in

MOLL TO FLY AT FAIR

One of the real attractions of fair week will be the flying of Captain Norman Moll, local aviator.

Mr. Moll will be at the Selzer Flying field throughout the week of the exhibition and will take fair visitors aloft.

Flying has proven a popular sport at all fairs in this locality and it is anticipated that a great many will avail themselves of going into the clouds with the local man.

Because of poor landing facilities Mr. Moll will be unable to operate direct from the fair grounds.

stables of national reputation will trot and pace over the half mile circle beginning Tuesday.

Secretary C. S. Van Auken and other officials of the fair have moved to their headquarters on the grounds and are putting the finishing touches on the affair which is to open Tuesday.

The livestock entries are larger this year than ever before—so large, in fact, that the officers have found it necessary to erect tents to cover cattle and swine overflow.

Entertainment Ready

The La Crosse Community Council has its tents ready for the shows that will be staged during the week under the auspices of the council. Only home talent will participate in this entertainment—an idea that is both new and unique in fair history.

Harry Palmer, well known local race horse driver, said Saturday before leaving for St. Louis with a carload of horses, that the entries for the 1920 Interstate fair offered the finest field of fast horses seen here since the days of the famous Neumeister races.

Mr. Palmer, because of an engagement in St. Louis, will miss the fair this week, for the first time in 25 years.

FORMER RESIDENT SUGGESTS LOCAL BUSINESS AMBASSADOR FOR SOUTH AMERICA TRADE

MAN FROM RIO URGES LA CROSSE TO SECURE SHARE

Export Trade Increasing But Confined to East; Suggests Local "Co-op" Investigation

LA CROSSE manufacturing establishments would find it well worth their while to make a study of South American markets, in the opinion of H. B. Robertson, formerly city editor of the Tribune and now Brazilian manager of the United Press, who has been here this week on a visit renewing his friendships in La Crosse. Mr. Robertson has spent seven years in Rio since leaving the Tribune, and through his association with the United Press has become thoroughly conversant with both Brazilian conditions and the success, achieved and potential, of American trade in that country. Just incidentally, Mr. Robertson points out that Brazil's territory is larger than that of the continental United States, and that its resources, of metals, woods, rubber, oil and other sorts constitute a vast storehouse of untouched wealth.

Most of Trade Goes to East

"South American trade with the United States," said Mr. Robertson, "has had an extraordinary expansion in the last four years. Where American goods were the exception when I went there, they now lead the field in many lines. South America has great prosperity and is a splendid market. But I could not help noticing that the bulk of American export trade in Brazil originates in the eastern part of the United States, and I have been wondering why more of the business men in the middle west do not get in on it. It is probably not so much because the customers are in a more advantageous geographical situation as because the manufacturers and exporters of the east have made a closer study of the world's markets than those of the smaller cities of the middle west who have confined their interest chiefly to domestic trade.

"As far as geographical location is concerned the middle west now is on practically equal terms with the east through development of the great port at New Orleans. That is now one of the best equipped and most efficient ports in the world, and it will grow steadily in importance in relation to the South American trade, not only because it is better arranged and less liable to congestion than the port of New York and older ports on the Atlantic, but because it is considerably nearer to the Panama canal and the South American coasts. For cities along the Mississippi the development of the port of New Orleans will be a tremendous assistance to export trade.

Suggests Local Emissary

"With American trade expanding in South America, La Crosse ought to and could get a share of it. There is any quantity of goods manufactured in La Crosse that would find a ready market in Brazil and the other countries. To get it, it would be necessary to make a study of conditions that prevail in South American markets.

"I would suggest that La Crosse business interests would find it extremely profitable to select some one well acquainted with manufacturing in La Crosse to go to South America and report his findings to the commercial community. I do not know who the man should be, but I am confident enough in what he would find there to recommend that he be the most confirmed 'crepe-hanger' and conservative that could be found in the community, provided he were also a man who knows business when he sees it. Such a man would not be subject to over-enthusiasm, and his report would have all the more weight in its favorable findings.

"This representative could spend a most profitable year getting a 'close-up' on the conditions in South American markets. He should be equipped with a thorough knowledge of the exporting facilities and capabilities of the La Crosse manufacturers, and he should conduct his investigations with a specific view of placing La Crosse-made goods on the South American markets. He could make a very thorough study of the possibilities and proposals of every interested plant before starting, and could bring back more information directly bearing on what La Crosse manufacturers want to know that they could get from reading hundreds of books of a general nature.

Information He'd Get

"His investigation would of course include questions of transportation, South American agencies, packing, advertising, legal formalities, exchange rates, banking facilities, terms of payment and the special requirements of the Latin American trade. In many lines products manufactured for domestic trade are acceptable to South America just as they are, but in some others some slight changes are necessary to satisfy South American ideas. Machinery, for instance, which is made for American trade is accepted as it is by the Brazilians. But in such lines as hardware and other things in which they have dealt for generations with European houses they are pretty well-settled in their opinions of what they want, and American manufacturers have to take this into account in going after the business.

"Incidentally, there may be some La Crosse manufacturers who might be interested not only in finding a market in South America but also in getting into touch with sources of raw material. The Para rubber of Brazil controls the rubber market of the world. Brazil exports most of the coffee and a lot of the sugar and tobacco used outside its borders.

Not Hard but Different

"Doing business in South America is not a bit harder than in the United States. It is somewhat different, and to make a success of it requires some study. Because the conditions are different people who don't get close to them are likely to be unduly impressed with the difficulties. But American firms that go down there generally succeed, just as they do at home, by going ahead and sticking to it. Any good business man with something worth while to sell can sell it in South America if he will go about it right.

"I feel sure that such an emissary as suggested would develop a splendid line of business for La Crosse, to be done at a good profit and with the utmost satisfaction to both the home community and the customers in the land of the Southern Cross."

PLAIDS GIVE BLACK GOWN YOUTHFUL AIR

BY CORA MOORE
New York's Fashion Authority

NEW YORK.—Plaids and brocades are to be eminently popular this fall and right on through the winter we shall wear them. Here is an effective model involving a unique material, and showing how very attractive materials that heretofore have seemed old-looking for her, may be as appropriately worn by a young girl as by a matron.

The main material is black satin. The tunic, which consists of two yard-length straight sections half a yard wide, hung crosswise, is of blue and white brocade in an interesting block and plaid pattern.

A soft rolling collar finishes the neck, soft turn-back cuffs the sleeves, and then there is a length of fringe as a motiff to hold the tunic together at the sides, as a last notch.

SHE SEEMED TO CARE FOR THE MAN

LONDON — Police court circles have had an unusual case in which a young girl, Miss Barbara Hutton, was charged with breaking into the home of her former sweetheart, Walter Beresford, just to get his picture! After being remanded for a week, the girl darted across the court room and kissed Beresford.

PREACH THE GOSPEL

Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature.—Mark 16: 15.

HAVE A GOOD TIME

THERE'S a new kind of a midway for the fair this year. New not only to La Crosse, but to fair authorities all over the country. They are watching it, to see whether it will succeed. They want to know if public taste wants clean, decent and wholesome shows, or whether the cheap, suggestive, catch-penny fakery of the past will still suffice. The La Crosse idea may be the leaven for something important in an activity that stretches over all the United States.

But don't let this momentous responsibility weigh on you when you go to the fair next week. Patronize the midway shows on their merits. Go to have a good time, not to set a good example. Remember, if you like, that the Community Council's share of the proceeds will be used for child welfare work all over the county. A good cause never interfered with a good time. But the good time is the thing. Half of the fun at a fair is the careless, carnival spirit that rules the midway, and it would be a tremendous loss, not only to you but to the possible success of the new La Crosse idea, if this should be lost.

We predict that you will be pleasantly surprised. You will find no haggard girls with shrill voices and forced smiles singing year-old rag-time off key. You will find no hard-faced, hard-boiled bally-hoo men reeling off glib lies about the apocryphal wonders within their shabby tents. You will see clever dancing, and hear fresh young voices—it will be jazzy popular stuff, no doubt, but it will be the newest and the best of its kind.

Amateurs? Of course. But did you ever see anything of professional finish and excellence under a tent on the midway? You know you didn't. As between the talented amateurs of La Crosse and the amateur atrocities of the usual midway show, we suspect that impartial critics will have no difficulty in awarding the palm.

LET'S START A STOVE LEAGUE

PRETTY soon the gang'll be lining up in front of the Tribune and Leader-Press window ten deep, watching the world series bulletins. They've been hanging over the ticker tapes in the cigar stores and buffets all summer, watching the big league races. When the Nelsons play at Copeland park thousands turn out to watch. The playground league contests aroused enormous interest and games were attended by hundreds—the championship series by thousands. Just Friday some fifty La Crosse business men and women—missed their suppers when their trip to the Houston county fair found a ball game on between Hokah and Caledonia. Interest in baseball? The town's alive with it. And there is a plenty of first-class playing material. Why can't we get together and treat ourselves to a share in the national sport next year? Now is the time to start. We've got all fall and winter to digest suggestions and thrash out some workable arrangement for either league ball or a schedule of high-grade semi-pro contests. Let's go!

OH, LISTEN TO THE BAND

PUTTING La Crosse on the map is an enterprise which has been undertaken frequently, and with varying success. In general it has succeeded pretty well, and at least to us it seems that our town is rather emphatically noticeable within the confines of the Badger state. But there never was a proud parent who thought his youngster was adequately appreciated, and by the same token there will never be a citizen who feels that an effort to put his community on the map in a little bigger type could be undesirable. We are for anything that can do that little thing, are we not?

Well, then, a word about the Elks' band—a word with no ulterior purpose of collecting anything, either. We merely wish to apprise that part of the community which believes "putting La Crosse on the map" is worth while that here is a new and effective agency for the purpose. Not just on the say-so of a partial brother member of No. 300, but on testimony that has been drifting in with visitors from all parts of the state since a party of La Crosse Elks travelled down to Milwaukee with the band in tow and assisted in the recent carnival and state convention. There was a substantial cross-section of Wisconsin in Milwaukee for the occasion, and they all got an eyeful and an earful of the La Crosse band.

And they liked it. It seems to have been the unanimous opinion of the assemblage that of all the various delegations at the celebration that of La Crosse had the edge, by reason of its band. They admired its looks and applauded its performance. It got the biggest hand of any outfit in the big parade, and the racket of approval at headquarters, in the lobby of the Plankinton and elsewhere when the band tested the rafters with a stirring march all but unsettled the roofs of several dignified structures. They are putting out bait all over the state to lure the La Crosse Elks' band to various cities.

We've known, most of us, in the year since the band began in a small way, that it was growing and improving. But here's disinterested testimony that it has arrived. Let the Elks' band be not without honor in its own country.

AUTUMN OUTINGS

THERE'S a big difference in people. Shows up in a lot of ways. And one of them is in the matter of vacations. Some people never had a real vacation. They don't even want one. Many take their time off in the early spring. Most wait until the hot days of July and August.

The winter resort man takes his vacation in summer, and the summer resort keeper takes his in winter.

But there is a growing army which finds in the tang of the autumn air the zest that spurs them through the work of the winter.

Surely, the fall is a delightful season of the year. The landscape is at its best. The woods flame with the colorings of the leaves that the frosts have touched. It is harvest time, too, and the autumn outers find country folks mighty glad to sell the products of the farm to them at cut rates. And big measure.

The autumn vacationer who loves the outdoors and nature in her sportiest mood, seems to have chosen the very cream of the months for his little adventure.

Those Tennessee legislators who voted against suffrage will think twice before they run for re-election.

CHURCH NEWS

Furnished by the Church News Association

With some money that was given by Methodists in their Centenary missionary celebration there was purchased a farm of two hundred and fifty acres, located quite near to Lyons, the great silk manufacturing city of France. The equipment of the farm is modern American machinery, and the farmer in charge is an American from Michigan. The purposes of the farm project are to receive French orphan boys, give them homes and teach them to be farmers, and to show to rural France, or a part of it, up-to-date American methods for tilling the soil. It was found that much of France which lives by the soil is following methods that were followed back in the middle ages or earlier.

The Home Mission council has taken over the former staff and material of the Interchurch World movement, and bearing the expense of putting into shape surveys in eight departments of the former Interchurch, so they may be used by the various missionary societies. The eight departments are Town and Country, City Surveys, Spanish Speaking Work, especially Mexicans coming over the border, Foreign Language literature, the Negro, Indian, Lumber Camps and Oriental. The council says much creditable work has been done by the Interchurch on these lines.

A Pilgrim Memorial fund, marking this Pilgrim year, started out to be $5,000,000. It was later resolved by the Congregationalists behind it to make it somewhat more if possible. It has now been determined to close it. The amount is $6,500,000 actually in hand, and the likelihood that later gifts will make it $7,000,000, or near that sum. Conspicuous successes, among many, were Connecticut, that gave $1,250,000 when only $750,000 was expected, and the Congregational Northwest—Oregon, Washington and Idaho, which gave $180,000, or some $12,000 more than was expected.

A vigorous and united campaign is on to get more and better men into the Christian ministry. The Student Volunteer movement, in a way a part of the Y. M. C. A., has for years recruited men for foreign fields. Now it has extended its aims, or contemplates soon to do so, to include ministers for pastorates in churches in the United States. Many leaders interested in abler men for the ministry say they found the Y. M. C. A. Summer conferences to be giving the impression to young people attending them that churches, being here, have to be endured and supported, but that really the institution really putting plans over is the Y. A better understanding has just been arrived at with the Y, concerning impressions to be given those who attend summer meetings in future years.

TUBERCULOSIS IS FOUND IN SEVERAL EXAMINED IN CITY

Twenty-three Out of Five Hundred Seven Examined Here Ordered into Sanatoria

As an immediate result of the clinic conducted by Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association last week under the auspices of the Red Cross a number of persons, found to have tuberculosis, will soon be under sanitorium treatment, which was recommended as the quickest and surest means of recovery. Of the 507 people examined practically 19 percent were found to have tuberculosis in some form or other. Twenty-three were advised to get into sanatoria at once.

"The clinic was a great success," said Miss Marion Corse, social worker for the state association who was active in organizing the clinic. "It will be most gratifying if the tuberculous patients follow the doctor's advice and enter a sanatorium, because this treatment insures the very best possible means of recovering their health. Tuberculosis itself is not such a deadly disease, but it is made so by the delays in diagnosis during the early stages and by the failure of the victims to realize the importance or necessity of taking the best treatment there is, when the possibilities of cure are at their best.

"In the clinics conducted by our organization it is the business of the doctors to discover the disease when it exists, in patients who visit the clinic. It is also the business of the doctor to do everything in his power in the limited time available to him, to convince the patient that it is vitally important to accept the treatment recommended.

"In some instances this desirable result is accomplished in a single sitting. In others, it can only be accomplished through persistant and patient "follow-up." There are often real obstacles which seem to prevent the patient's accepting the opportunities for cure, which our splendid chain of Wisconsin sanatoria afford. In most cases, however, by making adjustments here and there, these obstacles can be removed or smoothed down until they no longer seem unsurmountable.

"By bringing the patients who need them and the existing facilities of our sanatoria together, as the clinics are doing so effectively and directly, we can see that greater reduction in the number of deaths from this disease are inevitable. And as the number of victims in advanced stages are lessened, the chances of all of us sickening from the disease will be greatly lessened."

Public Debate

OF APPLES

Editor Tribune and Leader-Press:

Apropos of your editorial in Sunday's paper, "Apple Time," may a disinterested onlooker say a word? The varieties mentioned suggest "York State," the "I" in Dutchess being further evidence in the same direction. At any rate the kinds of apple mentioned, except Duchess, cannot be raised successfully within reach of most of your readers; nor is the cider mill an institution in this vicinity.

But "back home" in that dead and gone past which you lament, there was lots of help on the farm and the apples went to market at what seems to us ridiculous prices. But so did butter and beef and pork, and many other products for which the farmer of today must get a good price. The butter was made in the old dasher churn, (the old boys will remember), and was of a most variable quality. Recall the tryer the grocer used for testing the taste and smell of said butter? In those days you didn't say, "Give me a pound of butter," but "Have you got any good butter? The last I got was pretty strong and colored with ground carrots."

The jump from the hit and miss dairy butter to the modern dairy product and from the old blind horse of your editorial to the modern gas engine, is paralleled by the improvement in apple production. In the old days, after the orchard was set out, nature was left to her own devices, producing a crop or not, as the whim seized her. Usually nature smiled on the orchards on alternate years. Apples were a mere incidental of the farm and as the owner had not been educated in sorting and grading fruit, the consumer received good, bad and indifferent, worms, gnarls and all. Cultivation of orchards and spraying were almost unheard of. Today the farmer knows better what he ought to do, but lack of help and the rush of other work cause him to neglect the orchard. Therefore what apples he does market are apt to be of doubtful quality. To make matters worse the number of diseases and insect pests has been on the increase.

Under these circumstances the production of the good fruit is largely left to specialists. Orcharding, if properly conducted, is a year around job. After the last of the crop is harvested, pruning takes up the winter months. In spring dead trees are replaced or new ones set out. Perhaps some grafting and budding is carried on. During this season the trees are sprayed at least three times, which is a very particular and laborious task. During the spring and early summer the ground around the trees is cut up and mellowed with a disc or "cutaway" harrow. By the time this is done the early apples, like duchess, begin to ripen and must be hand picked and carefully packed for market. These are closely followed by Okabena, McMahan, Longfield, Wealthy and others, so that the time is well filled until cold weather sees the last of them in the house.

This round of work by which nature is assisted in producing a perfect box of apples, suggests the process by which the farmer and the creamery turn out the perfect tub of butter. Each is a finished product as truly as a watch or a sewing machine. Buildings, machinery, materials and labor are necessary to the production of each of these things. As the price of all these elements is high, the orchardist, as well as the other producers, must get a fair price for his product or quit.

Many fine apples are raised near here but the law of supply and demand takes quite a portion away from us to other markets. Yet apples for immediate use, of very good quality are available now at moderate prices both of local dealers and at the orchards. Now is the time to can 'em.

In this connection it might be interesting to note that probably three-fourths of the apples at the Minnesota State fair were grown within fifteen miles of La Crosse. Then we have a large number of successful orchardists on our own side of the river. When our Interstate fair is able to erect a suitable building we can have an apple show that will excel that of either of the state fairs. At any rate we shall have apples at the fair September 21-26, that have a quality and finish that only scientific care can produce.

THE "MACHINE" AND THE "BOSS"

Occasionally, when we become aware of the performances of some official we ask in astonishment, "Well, how in the world did he get into office, anyway?" And the explanation is often made, "Oh, he was the machine candidate," or "He stands in with the boss." Now, what does this reply mean? Is there something higher than the people or is there something more powerful than they? No, there is nothing in a democracy more powerful than those who exercise the suffrage. The voter is responsible for the success or failure of a democracy.

There are four unpardonable sins in a republic—selfishness, dishonesty, ignorance, and indifference. When one or more are at large the state is in danger. With all running rampant, the state is doomed. Upon them the "machine" and the "boss" feed and grow fat.

A political party has its series of permanent committees, as we have already learned. Beginning with the town, village, ward or city, they continue up through the county, the state and the nation. The committee in each political unit control the party interests in that unit. It is easy to see those who control the committees possess great influence especially if that party should be in power. This control is often sought by citizens with evil motives.

The term "machine" is an expression of reproach. It is used to designate a group of individuals who control the party organization for their own selfish ends rather than for the common good. The machine realizes that it must control the caucuses. If it fails to do so its power is gone and its purpose cannot be attained. So, when the caucuses meet, the machine sees to it that a majority present are its friends. This insures the nomination of candidates for the local offices favorable to it, and the selection of those delegates to the conventions who are ready to support its program. Under the direction of the machine the convention puts through its "slate," in other words it nominates the machine candidates. Once nominated the election must be assured, fraud and force being used if necessary. With its tools in the offices, the machine is ready to favor its friends, to rob the treasury and maintain itself in power at the expense of the public.

The "boss" is the person who directs the machine, or the part of it in his district. A ward boss directs it in a ward, a city boss in a city and a state boss throughout a state. Such men are commonly keen students of human nature, natural leaders of men, shrewd and unscrupulous in the extreme.

So absolute has the "machine" and the "boss" become in some American cities that the citizens have, at times, given up hopes and permitted the politicians to have their own way. But such an attitude is unpatriotic and should never be assumed by a citizen. What is more, there is no need of it for our laws are such that the voters can control the situation if they are willing to put forth the effort. Anyone who is unwilling to make the sacrifice is unworthy of his citizenship in this great republic.

(One week from today Professor Kinsman will discuss "The Qualifications of Voters.")

A Citizen of the United States

Mr. A. M. asks: Who are citizens of the United States?

Reply: The fourteenth amendment to the constitution declares that "All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the state wherein they reside." Consequently one who was born in the United States or a foreigner who has taken out both his first and second naturalization paper is a citizen, unless he has since renounced his allegiance to the United States.

Registration Prevents Dishonesty

Mrs. E. S. asks: Why are voters required to register in some cities and in others not?

Reply: The Wisconsin law provides that in all cities having a population of 5,000 or over voters must register. This is required in order to secure an honest ballot. In towns, villages and smaller cities the voters are generally known, but in the more densely populated cities they are not. It is important that only qualified voters be permitted to vote, and each one be permitted to vote but once. To determine just who are entitled to vote in a given precinct registration is necessary.

Mr. L. K. asks: Who is the chairman of the republican national committee? of the democratic national committee?

Reply: Mr. Will M. Hays is chairman of the republican national committee; and Mr. George White is chairman of the democratic national committee.

La Crosse is not to be without its dancing attractions on the Midway at the Inter-State Fair this year. Several girls of the Physical Education department of the Normal school are practicing a series of dances which are to be given during the fair.

The men are also to put on a program which will consist of apparatus work, tumbling and a boxing bout. The work is being done under the direction of Mr. Rueter and Miss Fessender, instructors of physical education.

MOTHER AND SON ARE BADLY BURNED IN RESIDENCE FIRE

Mrs. N. Biesen and Son Harry of Coon Valley, Severely Injured, at Hospital

Mrs. N. Bieson and son Harry of Coon Valley are at St. Francis hospital suffering with severe burns about the head, chest and arms, sustained in a fire which destroyed their home.

Awakening at 2 o'clock in the morning to find the house in flames, Mrs. Biesen and her son were forced to plunge through a wall of fire to make their escape, and were badly burned.

Two other children escaped unharmed.

Dr. H. E. Wolf, the attending physician, said last night that Mrs. Biesen and her son would probably recover.

SHIPPING BY TRUCK EFFECTS BIG SAVING FOR ONE ORCHARDIST

C. A. Dutton of Galesville Has the Figures to Prove What He Made

A saving of 45 cents a bushel on a truck load of apples, better condition of the fruit making possible a 50 per cent increase in the selling price, and a saving in time consumed in delivery, are some of the benefits noted by C. A. Dutton, manager of the Homeland Orchard of Galesville, who took a load of apples by truck to Rochester, Minn.

That the "ship by truck" movement is commercially and financially a success was demonstrated by Mr. Dutton's experimental trip. He saved 45 cents a bushel on a 125-bushel load by shipping by truck, as compared with the cost of shipping by train. The greatest saving was shown in the fact that the apples were picked in the orchard and placed in bushel crates in the truck and not handled again until unloaded at the door of the retailer or consumer. The apples were found in perfect condition at the end of the seventy-mile trip.

In estimating his expense, Mr. Dutton figured cost of gasoline and oil, tire and engine depreciation, maintenance allowance for truck, interest on his investment, cost of driver, helper, and insurance on the machine. On this basis the total operating cost of the entire 140 mile trip was $29.19. He figured the cost of shipping, handling and unloading the same amount of apples if sent by freight, at $86.52. Thus the saving by direct delivery was $57.33.

The gas consumption on this week's trip to Rochester was greater than usual because of detours over muddy clay roads. Average gas consumption usually is about 8 to 9 miles per gallon.

Mr. Dutton's analysis of the cost figures of shipment of the cargo of apples by truck and freight is as follows:

The Figures

Figures below are based on the operating cost of 2½ ton truck pneumatic tires:

Miles from Homeland orchards to Rochester and return, approximately 140, (considering detours).

Gas consumed, 19 gallons at 32c, $6.08; oil, 60c; tire depreciation (figured on basis of 7,000 miles), $7.10; maintenance allowance for truck, $4.17; total operating expenses, $17.95.

Fixed Expenses

Driver, $5; helper, $5; interest, 8 per cent on truck investment, 80c; insurance, fire, collision, 80 per cent, 44c; total fixed expense, $11.24.

Total operating cost of the entire 140 mile trip, $29.19.

Figuring maintenance cost, a maintenance allowance of $418.50 is allowed. A truck being renewed at the rate of $41.50 per year would be in A-1 condition at the end of a five-year period, or when figuring eight years as the life of this truck the full purchase price (less tires, which are replaced through a separate allowance) would be charged off, in addition to this, there would be allowed $66.78 per year for replacements on truck.

Cost of shipping 125 bushels of apples by freight to Rochester from Trempealeau, Wis., nearest shipping point:

Apples would have to be placed in bushel baskets, considering the bulk of 125 baskets it would require two trips to the station, making a total mileage of 25 miles.

Time required to pack and tag baskets and delivery to station would require the work of two men and the use of trucks for the entire day.

Approximate cost of operating truck for gas, oil, tires and maintenance for 25 miles, $3.38; fixed expense for two men ($10), interest and insurance ($1.24), $11.24; total operating and delivery cost for 125 baskets apples delivered at station, $14.62.

Cost of Baskets and Freight

125 baskets at 36c, $45.00; approximate weight, 125 baskets 6,000 pounds at 36½c per cwt. (the freight rate from Trempealeau to Rochester), $21.90; cartage from Rochester freight house to grocer (estimated), $5; total, $71.90.

Total operating and delivery cost to station, $14.62.

Total cost of freight delivery, $86.52.

Total cost of truck delivery, $29.19.

Saving by direct truck delivery, $57.33.

Flappers

Young maidens whose braids flap smartly to the breeze might well have been called Spankers instead of Flappers.

Outside of such nautical remarks, there is further sense in saying that modern Flappers are getting so flip they ought to be termed Flippers.

Flippancy at that is pretty enough in its flappant way. It goes well on the stage, for example, where a flip act seldom flops.

Flappers wear flapjacks over their ears, and their beaux are known as Flapper Jacks.

Under floppy hats flappers finally flock whereverer soda-clerks flip frappe. —Cartoons Magazine.

NO WONDER HE'S A PROUD BIRD

A mighty proud looking bird, isn't he? Experts assert that roosters as good should head every flock. Specialists assert it is easily possible to double the production of eggs and meat by raising better birds and giving them care. To encourage this much emphasis is being given the poultry show to be held at the Inter-State Fair, La Crosse, Wis., Sept. 21 to 24.

RUSSIAN IS HELD AS A SUSPECT IN BOMB PLOT CASE

Journalist Seen in Wall Street Right After the Explosion is Arrested

TWO INVESTIGATIONS MADE TO FERRET OUT THE MYSTERY

Seek Radicals Who Deposited Circulars in Mail Box

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—(By the Associated Press.)—Alexander J. Brailovsky, a Russian journalist, who was taken into custody late this afternoon after the police had received an anonymous letter that he was seen in the financial district a short time after the Wall Street explosion Thursday noon, was formally placed under arrest just before midnight on a charge of being an undesirable alien. He will be turned over to department of justice agents, the police said, while a check is being made on his movements.

Brailovsky was seized in a small stationery store on East Seventh street, in the rear of which is a printing shop where the "Russky Golos" (Russian Voice), described by authorities as a radical Russian magazine, is published.

Go To See Fischer

Local police investigators have been sent to question him and if he has direct knowledge of the explosion, to bring him back to New York, if possible. Fischer claims to have received notice of the impending disaster by "mental telepathy." Chief Flynn expressed the opinion that Fischer is in no way connected with the explosion itself.

In the search for the owner of the horse and wagon which were blown to pieces by the blast, one blacksmith, after being shown the shoes and hoofs of the dead horse, told the police he believed he might throw light on the identity of the horse and its owner. At noon he went to look at the badly dismembered carcass, but when he left the police said "there was nothing new to report."

Two Investigations on

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—(By the Associated Press.)—Investigation of the explosion in Wall street Thursday noon, which cost thirty-five lives and did property damage exceeding $1,000,000, broadly divided itself tonight into two separate channels.

Firm in their belief that the disaster was caused by a time bomb planted by a band of anarchists, who were also implicated in the mail bomb plots in June, 1919, department of justice investigators, headed by Attorney General Palmer and William J. Flynn, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, have centered their efforts in seeking the identity of the person or persons who deposited five radical circulars in a mail box near the scene just a few minutes before the explosion.

These circulars, printed on cheap paper and signed "American Anarchist Fighters," threatened "sure death for all of you" unless the "political prisoners were freed." They bear a striking likeness, Chief Flynn pointed out, to those found in the investigations of June, 1919.

Seek Driver of Wagon

Meanwhile, police investigators were concentrating their attention on trying to establish the identity of the driver of the dilapidated wagon which was abandoned near the J. P. Morgan & Company bank a few minutes before the explosion, and which is believed to have contained the infernal machine. Experts in the police bomb squad, who have examined and pieced together metal fragments believed to have been a part of the bomb, declared the deadly missile apparently weighed about 500 pounds, two hundred of which were the explosive itself.

Department of justice agents late today arrested an Italian stowaway on the outgoing steamship Cedric, on suspicion that he may have been implicated in the plot. He was taken to the department headquarters, questioned and later released, agents stating he had satisfactorily established his innocence.

The only other man being detained in connection with the explosion is Fischer, a lawyer and former employee of the French high commission here, who sent post card warnings of the disaster to friends in the financial district. He was turned over to the police of Hamilton, Ont., yesterday by his brother-in-law, Robert Pope, who said he was acting queerly. Fischer was later adjudged mentally incompetent by a lunacy commission and temporarily confined to Hamilton jail.

Jubilant Over Something

The writer of the anonymous letter informed the police that he saw Brailovsky and three other men talking at the corner of Pine and Nassau streets, near the scene of the explosion, about twenty minutes after the detonation took place. The writer declared the three men seemed to be in a jubilant mood.

Brailovsky, the police said, admitted being at the place mentioned, but placed his presence there an hour later than the letter charged. He denied all knowledge of the explosion. He explained his presence in the financial district by stating that he wished to dispose of some jewelry boxes there.

Brailovsky further admitted, the police said, that he talked to three men there. He said he knew only one of them, but the man who he knew was acquainted with the other two.

At first he refused, the police explained, to divulge the name of his companions.

"My race," he is quoted as saying, "never divulges the name of another person without that person's consent and so I cannot enlighten you."

Big Women's Exhibit

The exhibits in the women's building will equal or rival anything that has been attempted heretofore, while the poultry exhibition this year will be one of the finest in the northwest. Not only local birds will be shown but a number of fanciers from distant points are coming into the show determined to clean up on the ribbons.

Open in Evenings

Pursuant to a plan which met with great success last year, the fair will be open evenings for the first four days. Illumination has been arranged and the Midway will be in full blast as long as the crowds last.

MAY SETTLE MILAN STRIKE

MILAN, Sept. 18.—Negotiations between the masters and metal workers are proceeding satisfactorily, giving hope that an accord may be reached within a relatively short time.

The most difficult point of discussion is the one dealing with evacuation of the plants by the men. It has been virtually agreed that the men will leave the establishments contemporaneously with the payment of wages due them. No settlement has yet been reached as to what increase in wages they are to receive. They claim seven lire twenty centimes more daily, which is equal, at par, to $1.44, while the employers refuse to give them more than four lire, normally eighty cents.

MRS. MALLORY WINS AT TENNIS

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 18.—Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory won the women's national tennis championship for the fourth time today when she defeated Miss Marion Zinderstein of Boston at the Philadelphia Cricket club.

Miss Zinderstein and Miss Eleanor Goss of New York won the doubles championship, which they also won last year, by defeating Miss Eleanor Tennant and Miss Helen Baker of California, 13-11, 4-6, 6-3.

STOCKS HEADING UPWARD

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Stocks were irregular today on the usual week-end selling for profits and settlement of speculative accounts, but the trend for the most part was again higher.

Rails dominated the session, the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western dissolution plan giving impetus to other roads which are believed to contemplate absolute separation from their coal properties.

ST. PAUL MAKES RECORD

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 18.—In defeating Indianapolis today, the St. Paul club equalled the American association record for victories by a team in one season. It was the Saints' 105th victory. Minneapolis established the mark in 1912.

TEACHERS SCARCE MAKING JOBS FOR MANY OF STUDENTS

Enrollment at Normal School Larger than Since the War the Reports Show

STRONG MEMBERS ARE ADDED TO FACULTY OF THE SCHOOL

Fine Outlook for Successful Year in the Institution

The enrollment at the La Crosse State Normal school is larger this year than it has been since the war. The fact that more students are not enrolled is due to the high salaries being paid to teachers throughout the country. The demand for teachers is so great and the salaries paid so good, that a great number of people who would otherwise be in school this year, have accepted positions as teachers. In the rural schools especially, girls are teaching this year who have had but a six weeks' summer school course in their work, after graduation from high school.

Reports coming in from the other Normal schools indicate that the situation is the same all over the state.

The enrollment of men is the largest this year in the history of the school. There are already twenty more men enrolled this semester than during the entire school year last year, and more are expected in a few days.

More new faculty members have been added this year than any time since the school opened. The salaries are higher this year, the result being the addition of several strong members to the teaching staff.

The outlook is bright for the musical organizations for the coming year. Twenty-three experienced bandmen responded to the first call for musicians, which means that the band will get into action earlier than usual this year. The prospects are equally bright for the orchestra and glee clubs as there is a wealth of good material among the incoming students.

There is enrolled in the school perhaps the best material for oratory and debate that has ever been known to the institution. Courses are being offered this year in public speaking, oratory and debate, which will afford the students a great opportunity in this line of work.

lieve, however, that the dividend vote against Lenroot was responsible for is victory, and we cannot believe that the people of Wisconsin on election day will ratify the decision of the republican primaries. If Senator Lenroot had been opposed by one candidate in the primaries, we believe he would have been defeated.

Three Are Defeated

"In Wisconsin there were eleven congressmen and one senator nominated. We approved the records of nine of the congressmen nominated. In addition to Mr. Esch, Representatives Monahan and Randall were defeated for renomination and we fought them both because they voted for the Esch-Cummins bill. We also opposed the renomination of Representative A. P. Nelson, but he pulled through."

Another point of view came from William H. Manning of Milwaukee who has been in Washington lately. Like most of the people here he regarded the victory of Senator Lenroot as the big outstanding feature of the election.

"The victory of Senator Lenroot over James Thompson," he said, "reaffirms the loyalty of the state to Americanism and republicanism. Senator Lenroot's victory, which means an end to the control that Senator La Follette has long maintained in the state, came as a distinct surprise to many who have followed the situation closely."

State Loses Chairmanship

By the defeat of Esch, Wisconsin loses the chairmanship of the powerful house committee on interstate and foreign commerce. It was as chairman of this committee that Esch was one of those instrumental in framing the Esch-Cummins railroad law, and it will be the chairman of this committee in the next congress who will have to do with the changing of that law should such a step be demanded.

Monahan, having been elected to congress only once, has not risen to the place of power, like that of Esch. During the present congress he has been a member of the mines and mining, railways and canals, roads and territories committees.

Women Uncertain Factor

The attitude of the women in the election was a course of much speculation. Whether or not in the future an attempt will be made to organize women for independent political action or to urge them to join the old parties will be decided at a convention of the National Woman's party in the near future. The date hasn't been set yet.

Mrs. Frank Putnam of Milwaukee and Miss Sarah Jones of Oshkosh, representing the state organization of the woman's party in Wisconsin are expected to attend the convention carrying the views of the women of the state on what should be their course in the future. At an executive meeting of the National Woman's party in New York recently, expression of opinion as to the future of the organization by leaders like Miss Alice Paul were distinctly for a continuation of the organization.

"Women have won the vote by fighting, as women," she said, "with the votes of a small group of women for weapons. I feel that full equality can only be won by further campaigning along the same line."

Several Wisconsin men are active in the Traveling Men's Bureau of the republican national committee. Among them is Richard J. White of Milwaukee, national president of the Travelers' Protective association, who was scheduled to be one of the delegation that called on Warren G. Harding, the republican presidential nominee. The object of the organization is to enlist the traveling fraternity in the Harding cause.

Although Wisconsin did not send a special delegation to the twenty-first annual encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, an ex-soldier organization, there was one Wisconsin man here for the event, anyway. He is Louis C. Wolk, whose home is in Columbus, about thirty miles from Madison. He is at present in the navy, but is also a member of the foreign veterans' organization.

One of the big events of their conclave was a parade, reviewed informally by the president from the east portico of the white house. Although few people know that the president was there, including many of the men who paraded, he was in full view of the crowd that gathered across the street. He did not leave his wheel chair, but saluted briskly with his hat each time the flag went by.

Will Attend U. W.

There is quite a group of young people whose homes are in Washington who are going west to attend the University of Wisconsin in Madison this fall. Several of them have left already and the remainder will leave during the next week.

Among them is the son of Representative Edward E. Browne of Waupaca, Edward Browne, Jr. He will be a senior in the university this fall. Others include Elibeth Chandler, whose home is at Linden, Md., near here, senior; Joseph Danksys, a medical student; Mrs. Margaret Duckett, junior; Percy Gibson, senior; Robert Hardell, senior; Basil Morchley, senior; Mary Alice Newton, senior; May Rush, junior; Worth Shonlis, sophomore; Adienne Shreve, senior; Elizabeth Verhees, senior, and Hazel Priest, junior.

Lawson a Bidder

The Lawson Air line, whose factory is in Milwaukee, made three bids to the postoffice department for carrying mail by airplane and by seaplane on the routes from New York to Chicago, New York to Atlanta, Ga., and from Pittsburgh, Pa., to St. Louis, Mo. Alfred W. Lawson, head of the firm, proposes, if given the award, to use planes with a maximum carrying capacity of 12,000 pounds including fuel. The planes will be equipped with three motors and capable of a maximum speed of 120 miles an hour. Their fuel capacity is twelve hours. He also proposes to carry passengers as well as mail. He hopes, if given the contract, to start the first route soon after November 15.

DAREDEVIL AIRMAN SERIOUSLY INJURED HIGH UP IN AIR

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 18.—Five hundred feet in the air, in view of 8,000 visitors at the state fair late today, "Tex" McLoughlin, dare-devil airman, was seriously injured when struck by the propeller of the higher airplane to which he had transferred himself in midair.

McLoughlin's escape from death was miraculous. He clung to the rope ladder of the machine until it reached the ground, blood dripping over the spectators as the machine circled in descending partly out of control. McLoughlin was still conscious when reached, though he had been dragged more than 100 feet on the ground before the machine was brought to a stop. Physicians think he will recover.

CAPITOL WILL MAKE HILL LOOK LIKE SHE'S BACKING UP SAYS LAW

rather than take a chance, they let their passengers hike it from Isle la Plume, some of them arriving home at breakfast time, while the "Capitol" landed her crowd at the foot of Main street.

While on the subject, I might add that few people realize how much levee park has helped to put La Crosse on the map. A few years ago along the river, when you told people you were from La Crosse, their reply was usually "Oh, yes, that is where Old Style Lager and Gund's Peerless are made," but now the reply is, "We remember La Crosse well, that's where they have such a beautiful park and levee." And it is not only on the upper river that you hear it, but as far south as New Orleans. Capt. Geo. Nichols of this city, one of the oldest and best pilots on the river, could relate some very interesting facts regarding steamboating in the early days, which would be of interest to all your readers.

Respectfully yours,
CAPT. ARCHIE H. LAW.

TICKET SCALPERS HELD

CHICAGO, Sept. 18.—Forty alleged ticket scalpers today were summoned to appear before United States Commissioner Mason on Monday after twenty federal agents, sent to the Chicago American league baseball park to investigate their activities before the White Sox-Yankees game today, reported that they were selling tickets without paying government tax. Commissioner Mason said that if it were found that they were deliberately evading the war tax, federal warrants would be sworn out.

OGLESBY LEADING LEN SMALL AS THE LATE RETURNS COME

Indications are that Lowden Candidate for Governor Will Have Small Majority

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 18.—With returns in from all downstate precincts, and but 268 missing in Cook county, Lieutenant Governor John G. Oglesby, supported by Governor Lowden in the race for the republican nomination for governor, tonight held a lead of 2,526 over Len Small, who was backed by Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago.

Returns from other Cook county precincts gave an average plurality of forty to the precinct for Small. Results of the vote in the missing Chicago precinct will not be known until the official count next week and consequently the race must remain in doubt until then.

For the senatorial nomination, Congressman William B. McKinley, Lowden candidate, was leading Congressman Frank L. Smith of the Thompson ticket by 19,140, with eleven downstate and 268 Cook county precincts missing. The Cook county precincts reported gave Smith an average plurality of 35.

Edward J. Brundage, incumbent, was 4,179 votes ahead of R. J. Barr for the nomination for attorney general, with 892 precincts unaccounted for, and Edward E. Miller, Thompson candidate for state treasurer, had a comfortable lead over George E. Keys.

In all the other contests for state offices Lowden candidates were in front.

William E. Mason and Richard Yates, both incumbents, were well ahead of their opponents for the nominations for congressman at large.

On the democratic side J. Hamilton Lewis, former United States senator, continued to pile up his lead over Barratt O'Hara for the gubernatorial nomination, while the senatorial nomination remained in doubt.

delphia. In university track and field meets Miss Bischoff equalled the American record in the eighty-yard dash. She played on varsity basket ball and hockey teams. She was one of the eight girls chosen out of one hundred to take part in the ballet of the French play given by the Le Circle Francais at the Belleview-Stratford Hotel, Philadelphia.

Puts On Pageants

When at Doylestown Miss Bischoff put on two pageants, the first year "The Melting Pot" which was given by over five hundred children in the court house park, and the second year "The Pied Piper". Both of these plays she dramatized from the novel and the poem.

Her lessons will include instructions in general and corrective gymnastics, dancing, swimming and basket ball for juveniles, girls and matrons. Miss Bischoff spent her summer at home instructing Y. W. girls in swimming.

Miss Swindell comes from Highwood, Illinois, where she was associated with the War Work Council of the Young Women's Christian Association. Besides club work for girls she had charge of parties and recreation for the wounded soldiers at Ft. Sheridan, and also supervised the Sheridan Club of the War Camp Community Service while in Detroit at the girl reserve club rooms of the Y. W. C. A. Her work was among the younger girls in business and industry.

Has Musical Training

Miss Swindell was a student at Kalamazoo College, Michigan and took her musical training at the Cincinatti Conservatory.

Girls from twelve to eighteen years of age are included in her department, which is divided into three groups, the high school girls, the grade girls and the younger girls in business and industry. The work consists of club organization for these groups banding them together under the international name "Girl Reserves." The object of the movement is to give the girls through normal natural activities, the habits, insights and ideals which will make them responsible women, capable and ready for service.

The full schedule of class and club work will actively open the first week in October. In the meantime Miss Bischoff and Miss Swindell will be pleased to meet at the Y. W. C. A., headquarters 420 Main St., all girls interested in or desiring to become interested in any of the activities of their departments.

BOUNDARY DISPUTE IS UP

PARIS, Sept. 18.—Discussion of the boundary dispute between Poland and Lithuania, which has led to sporadic hostilities between those nations, was continued today by the council of the league of nations in session here. The council will again take up the question on Sunday morning, having failed to reach any decision in the matter today.

Although the council heard both M. Woldemar, the Lithuanian foreign minister, and Ignace Paderswski, the former premier of Poland, it is understood that it has not yet determined whether the league has jurisdiction, as Lithuania is not a member of the league.

OUSTED AFTER ATTEMPT TO KIDNAP EDITOR

GALVESTON. — Upon admitting that he was responsible for the attempt to kidnap Editor G. V. Sanders of the Houston Press, Colonel Billie Mayfield was relieved of his duties as provost marshal and subsequently placed on trial here in a court martial ordered by Brig. Gen. Walters, military ruler of Galveston. The findings of this court martial which also tried the three officers who made the attempt to kidnap the editor, have been sent to Governor Hobby.

SUGAR PROFITEERS ARE FLAYED BY COX IN OAKLAND SPEECH

OAKLAND, Calif., 18.—Sugar profiteers were arraigned here tonight by Governor James M. Cox. Governor Cox reviewed attempts by the president to dethrone profiteers who have reigned for "five long years, sordid, soulless, ugly and hateful."

"I am in favor, in circumstances like this," the governor said, "of the government through congress, supplying a rotary fund to be placed in the hands of the president for the purchase of as much of the sugar crop as is necessary to prevent profiteering. If elected in November I shall recommend to the congress that this be done for future emergencies in food supplies.

"The extent to which profiteering prevailed during the war, and especially since the signing of the armistice, has been outrageous. The amount stolen from householders of America in that time by the profiteers could pay off the greater part of the funded debt arising from the war itself.

"It must be more than a coincidence that the many profiteers who were protected by the senatorial oligarchy in the present congress are paying their share into the republican campaign fund, which I charge will not be less than $15,000,000."

Governor Cox pointed out relation of radical activities to profiteering.

NO HYPHENATED AMERICANISM IS ENTERTAINED NOW

No Middle Ground on Which to Stand in this Country Says Candidate Harding

MARION, Ohio, Sept. 18.—Americanism, its meaning to the foreign born citizen and the dangers of a hyphenated citizenship, was the keynote of an address delivered from his front porch today to delegations of foreign born citizens by Senator Harding, the republican presidential candidate.

The delegations came from New York, Chicago and cities of the northwest and Cleveland. The New York delegation was headed by Senator William M. Calder, J. J. Lyons, candidate for lieutenant governor, and John Stewart, president of the New York Republican League clubs. The Chicago delegation was headed by Senator Medill McCormick, who presented the foreign born citizens to the candidate. Dr. A. Cherna and Dr. G. A. Barricelli headed the Cleveland contingents.

No Hyphenated Americanism

While declaring that "it is not possible, and ought not to be expected, that Americans of foreign birth shall stifle love for kinsfolk in the lands from which they came," the senator asserted that "we are unalterably against any present or future hyphenated Americanism."

Senator Harding was interrupted many times during his address by applause as he struck sympathetic notes. Touching on foreign relations the senator declared that "nothing helpful has come from the wilful assumption to direct the affairs of Europe," but that "on the contrary the mistaken policy of interference has broken the drawstrings of good sense and spilled bad council and bad manners all over the world."

"Meddling abroad," he asserted, "tends to make Americans forget that they are Americans and to arouse the old and bitter feelings of race or former nationality, or foreign ancestry, in the hearts of those who ought never to have been forced to turn their hearts away from undivided loyalty and interest given 'to America first.'"

Sounds a Warning

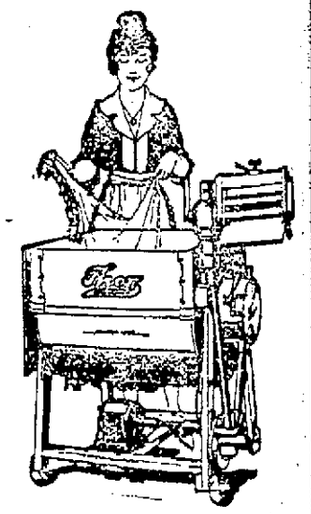

Warning against hyphenism, Senator Harding asserted that the time might come when a group or groups of men and women of foreign birth or foreign parentage, not organized for the interest of America, but organized around a resentment against our government, interference abroad in the land of origin, might press, by propaganda and political hyphenism upon our government, to serve their own interests rather than the interests of all America.

"It is not beyond possibility," he continued, "that the day might come —and may God forbid it—when an organized hyphenated vote in American politics might have the balance of voting power to elect our government. If this were true, America might be delivered out of the hands of her citizenship and her control might be transferred to a foreign capital."

Fall Days Suggest The Essex Sedan

Economical—Easily Handled, Beautiful and Comfortable—Compare its Price

Everyone now thinks of an enclosed car for cool nights and the coming winter

But the objection to enclosed bodies on light cars has been their restricted performance.

The Essex has ample power to offset the additional body weight.

Economical in Operation and Maintenance

It is a compact, commodious car, with a range of performance that answers every need. Owners have used their Essex Sedans for long tours. They know no limits to its service. It answers every requirement of comfort and beauty and it is economical as everyone expects a light car to be.

Gasoline, oil and tires are small items of expense in the operation of the Essex. But the greatest saving is due to its reliability. Repair and adjustment costs are negligible.

Much of the satisfaction in motoring comes from the appearance of the car. It expresses one's taste and individuality as much as one's clothes or the house in which one lives.

The Sedan is in every sense a family car of all seasons.

And its price is more than attractive in comparison with other Sedan types, regardless of the more important question of performance and durability.

RAILROADS READY TO PLACE ORDERS FOR ROLLING STOCK

Western Lines Endeavoring Aggressively to Meet the Problem Says Northwestern

The main trouble of producers and shippers of all classes at present is that the railroads do not furnish enough cars to ship their products, says a news story from the Chicago and Northwestern railroad.

Naturally, the farmers of the middle west and other shippers are disposed to blame the railroad management for this condition.

Why don't the railways promptly carry all the freight offered them? The main reason is that during the last five years they already have increased by about 5 per cent the amount of freight handled, while their freight cars and other facilities have increased less than 5 per cent.

Why haven't railway cars and other facilities increased more? First, because, while the railways were being privately operated they were so regulated that they couldn't raise enough capital to provide enough facilities, and secondly, because during the two years they were under government operation the government made almost no increases in cars and other facilities.

The railway managements are making great efforts to improve the the situation. The amount of freight that can be moved with any given number of cars depends on how many tons of freight are loaded in each car and on how many miles a day each car is moved. Under government operation in February, 1920, the average miles moved by each car daily was 22. The railways under private management have set out to increase the average movement to 30 miles, or almost 40 per cent over what it was in the last month of government operation. The outlaw strikes in April and May seriously interfered with efficiency, but in June each car was moved on the average of 25 miles per day, an improvement over February of 15 per cent.

The railways are also making great efforts to increase the amount of their cars and other facilities. Before the recent advances in rates were granted by the interstate commerce commission the railway companies had arranged to spend about $750,000,000 for new cars and locomotives and for additions and improvements in their tracks, yards and other facilities. Now that the advances in rates have been granted they will enlarge their plans for improvements.

Out in this part of the country some people are trying to convince the farmers that the railways are not making proper efforts to move grain, livestock, etc., and that in many cases they are carelessly letting cars stand around when they ought to be in action. Charges of this kind are based on lack of full and correct information and are unjust. The western lines are very short of cars, and of locomotives and other facilities to move the cars. Furthermore, the government returned much of their equipment to them in bad shape. Many of these cars which, it is charged, the railways are letting stand around are cars that are in bad order and awaiting their turn to go into the repair shops.

The incontrovertible statistics of the interstate commerce commission show that thus far this year, in spite of difficulties, the Western lines have moved more freight of all kinds than last year and that the amount of freight moving is constantly increasing. Railway officials do not claim that the railways are being operated perfectly, but they are doing their best, and if the farmers and other shippers will help them by loading and unloading them as promptly as possible, the amount of freight moved will be greatly increased with resulting benefit to the shippers and the country.

The Plumber's Nerves

It is charged against the esteemed plumbers of Birmingham that work done in 1914 in six days at $6 a day now requires eleven days at $12 a day. This is leaving out of consideration the fact that the nerves of practically all plumbers suffered during the war, thus unfitting them for their arduous duties.—Birmingham Age-Herald.

HARVARD MAINTAINS OBSERVING STATION IN ANDES MOUNTAINS

Station Has Largest Photographic Apparatus in the World

SANTIAGO—The South American station of Harvard University's observatory, tucked away in the Peruvian Andes near the city of Arequipa, in the old Inca empire, boasts of the largest photographic apparatus in the world. It is a huge telescopic camera with a 24-inch lens which has been of great aid to science in its observations of the southern skies.

The station was founded thirty years ago and is located near the base of the famous Andean Volcano, Misti. The Arequipanian Indians, descendents of the Inca civilization, frequently speak of themselves as the sons and daughters of old Misti. It is said the Indians in the surrounding country still worship the mountain with much reverence, regarding it as the source of earthquakes which often are felt in the region. The volcano erupted seven years ago.

Superstitions in regard to the mountain date back to prehistoric times. The ruins of the ancient pagan temples, a writer says, have been found in the crater of the volcano and even today near the top may be seen a great iron cross placed there in 1677 when a party of Spanish priests exorcised and pleaded with it not to erupt again and destroy their cities.

The clear atmosphere of the Arequipa region is said to have afforded an excellent site for an observing station.

HORSES AND HORSE RACING AT EARLY WISCONSIN FAIRS

BY G. W. VERGERONT

The first classes offered for horses at the earlier fairs held in Wisconsin usually contained a few strikers, individuals, which had their sworn owners, and a few native and grade horses of questionable ancestry. There may have been many descendants of the old Conestoga and old French Canadian horses distributed among the few classes which divided horses as to their sex, use and age as well as to breeds. By 1850 new blood had been introduced into the state in the form of the English thoroughbred or the so-called "Blood horse," and in the form of that beautiful type Morgan horse with which our grandfathers were so familiar. Spirited horses of both breeds appeared often on the track and in the show ring. The counties of central and southern Wisconsin were greatly taking up with the thoroughbred, while the Morgan was in evidence at practically every fair in the state by 1860. For example, we find that a Vermont Rattler attracted considerable attention at the Iowa county fair in Dodgeville; at the same show "Rocky" Morgan, of Mifflin, offered to run his mare Corsica against any horse for a purse of one to five miles and a side bet of $100 to $500. Ten years after the beginning of the Civil War, fairs began to demand that they possess heavier horses to replace the Morgan and Hambletonian horses of all work; by this term it was meant that animals must have sufficient weight in the opinion of the judges to pull a plow or wagon, and sufficient action to hitch to the family carriage and to carry their owners with fair speed and safety. To give a person an idea of the blanket-like inclusiveness of the above term the "Transactions of the New York Agricultural Society for 1855" show that William M. Ryss won second prize in the class for horses of all work at the Albany fair of 1855, on a bay three-year-old colt called Hambletonian. Throughout the history of the county fair in this state the trotting horse has been exhibited at every exhibition, gradually gaining prestige, until about the time of the close of the early 'nineties, when many horse owners were compelled to get out.

Trotting began in Wisconsin as an exhibition of speed. Very often this exhibition was in the nature of a trial against time by a single animal. There were three of these trials at the Racine county show of 1859. Green Mountain Morgan trotted a mile in 2:40, for a purse of $10; a stallion named (paced) a mile in 2:46 for a purse of a like amount, and a horse walked a mile in twelve minutes for a purse of $8. During the early 'sixties horses of such names as Honest Grey Eagle, Morgan Prince, Black Hawk and Brown Tiger appeared in the summaries, both under saddle and in the sulky. These horses were undoubtedly of Morgan breeding, but we also find evidence of Stevens' Bald Chief being driven in the roadster class. Purses for trotting matches during the 'sixties ranged from $20 to $60, and purses of $100 were sometimes offered for the runners, one having been divided at the Mineral Point fair of 1867.

Fast running horses and races have never been popular throughout the state, but have flourished in southwestern Wisconsin. Lafayette, Grant Iowa, Green and Columbia counties have given much attention to thoroughbreds and running races from their earliest fairs up to the present time. The Lafayete society gave a $500 Derby as late as eighteen years ago. This event attracted much attention, and the fact that the ladies furnished a horse shoe wreath for the winner shows that such events were still in favor. Settlements of early lead miners from Virginia and Kentucky and later settlements of English miners in this section of the state, seems to have kept alive a decided love for the thoroughbred horse. This is not at all deplorable, for Arctic, Iceberg, Icicle and other thoroughbred sires of trotting horses came from this part of Wisconsin.

Some Fakery

Before 1870 horse racing at the fairs was not altogether satisfactory. A great many fake races were staged, and purses were put up by private individuals who made use of the society tracks to enrich themselves. After the above date, the American Trotting Association took charge of the western half-mile tracks and enforced rules by which honest races were produced. Purses steadily increased in value, until the $200 mark was reached, then the introduction of the pneumatic-tired sulky gave added momentum to harness racing, with the result that purses again ascended until opposition was set up by those who were somewhat hurt by the popularity of the sport.

While horse racing has been credited with attracting entirely too much attention at the avernge fair, it cannot be said that horse racing is not an important and necessary function of fairs. John M. True, in a talk at one of our farmers' institutes of 1906, stated that he knew of no successful fair which did not give horse races. However, the Vernon county society held a fair in 1911, at which no horse racing was held, but at which greater sums were expended for other special attractions by which to get crowds. This society has since gone back to the speed program and seems to meet with better than ordinary success. That some of this society's fairs did not meet with the proper financial support cannot entirely be due to the trotting horse, but may also be attributed to the inadequate transportation facilities for handling speed horses and cattle sent for exhibition. Most of our county fairs have found horse races successful and in nearly every instance absolutely necessary to attract the attention of fair patrons. At the Walworth county fair at Elkhorn, purses to the extent of $4,500 were offered for speed attractions at the fair of 1911.

Last summer "Perry" told of an incident that brought an eighty-two-year-old driver and a boy reinsman of thirteen together upon the Evansville track. The former was Uncle Joe Bassett, the driver and breeder of two famous early performers which bore his name, as well as the man that had most to do with Johnston, p. 2:06 1-4. I might enumerate other names of drivers and horses that have trained and raced on Wisconsin tracks but you would soon say, as M. T. Grattan did, that horse racing was an institution before fairs were thought of. However, we are proud of the fact that Goldsmith Maid 2:14 trotted to her record of 2:17 over the Cold Spring Milwaukee track, and that Knight of Strathmore 2:03 3-4 broke the world's record for a four-year-old pacing colt on a half-mile track.

1920 is the Big Year for LA CROSSE

MILLION DOLLARS CHANGED HANDS ON RESULT OF RACE BETWEEN LEE AND NATCHEZ

Old Upper-River Pilot Recalls Famous Incidents of Steamboat Races Near La Crosse in the Last Generation

TALK of the proposed race between the two big steamboats, the Capital of the Streckfus line and the G. W. Hill of the Wisberd line following the duel which Captain Wilcox of the Hill recently hurled at the Streckfus vessel inevitably recalls the "palmy days" of the river, when the greatest sporting event for huge sections of the country was a steamboat race.

The packets, fighting for passengers and freight, were built for speed. The proud title of the fastest boat on the upper or lower river—St. Louis being the dividing point—was eagerly fought for, and the badge of championship, a broom worn on the top of the pilot-house to signify that the vessel had "swept the river" was the dearest possession of captain, pilot, owner and crew. Boats in sight of each other on the river were constantly racing, and in several famous instances rival owners staged speed tests in which no freight or passengers were carried, in order to reduce the load on the engines to a minimum, and to permit the last possible knot of speed to be shown.

The Natchez-Lee Race

Perhaps the most noted of all such trials was the famous race from New Orleans to St. Louis between the Natchez and the Robert E. Lee. That race is familiar to thousands even of the present day by reason of song and story in which it has been perpetuated. But when it occurred, in 1870, it was the talk of months all over the United States. A million dollars in bets changed hands on the result, it is estimated, and every newspaper in the country flashed the hourly bulletins of the progress of the race to huge crowds that watched the boards.

Here is the story of that famous race, as told by a contemporary writer:

"Captain T. P. Leathers of the Natchez, a Cincinnati built boat, made the trip from New Orleans to St. Louis, 1728 miles upstream, in three days, 21 hours and 58 minutes. He arrived on June 24, 1870, and gave the fact to Captain John W. Cannon, commander of the Robert E. Lee, a New Albany built craft and rival of the Natchez.

"Cannon knew it was a challenge and began to prepare for the return of the Natchez. He lightened the Lee in every possible way and arranged for coal barges to be anchored in mid-stream at various points along the river. He refused all freight or passengers.

"The Natchez returned to the Crescent City, took several hundred tons of freight and a few passengers, and started for St. Louis at 5 o'clock, June 30th. The Lee swung into the stream at the same moment. Captain Leathers had been informed of the preparations of the Lee's commander. It was a race from the start. At first, only the people of the Mississippi Valley looked on, but before the end of twenty-four hours the entire population of the United States was following telegraphic accounts of the contest. The Lee gained slightly every hundred miles. At Natchez, three hundred miles from the starting point, she made ten minutes ahead, because the Natchez had made two landings for coal and wood.

"At the Vicksburg Bend, although the two boats were ten miles apart by the river's course, their smoke commingled. (Across the narrow neck of land between the two sides of the bend.) More people stood upon the shore near Helena than at any time since De Soto was there. Forty thousand men, women and children watched the steamers pass Memphis without making a landing. The Natchez had cut down the Lee's lead, because Leathers had adopted Cannon's method of taking fuel; but in the bend near Island No. 10 she ran aground and lost six hours! The Lee arrived at St. Louis only thirty-three minutes ahead of the previous record of the Natchez. Captain Cannon was lionized, although opinion will ever be divided regarding the relative speeds of the two boats. The south was not rich in those days; but more than $1,000,000 changed hands in the Mississippi Valley on the result of that race."

Sitting on the Valve

Steamboat racing was "hot stuff". It was a matter of power as much as of the build of the boats since all river steamers are built on about the same lines. And in order to get all the pressure possible into the cylinders which turn the giant paddles, safety was frequently discarded in the heat of the fight. The traditional figure of speech was "a nigger setting on the safety valve". Sometimes they tied the valve down so that it would be possible to crowd the boilers beyond the pressure at which the makers held them to be safe. And, more than once, a boat, pushed too hard in a race "let go" with an explosion that turned her into a blazing wreck in an instant. Mark Twain, who once was a Mississippi river pilot, in "The Gilded Age" described such a race and disastrous ending, telling how the captain of the boat being overtaken by its rival ordered the engineer to heave into the fire-box barrels of pitch and bacon from the cargo in order to intensify the fire and increase the steam pressure.

Apparently river boats frequently carried barrels of resin or pitch with them for just such emergencies, since races between rival craft were of daily occurrence. At least, hardly a tale of the river but mentions throwing this highly combustible substance into the furnace to "hot 'er up" and crowd on extra pounds of steam.

Famous Race Past La Crosse

The most famous race on the upper river was that between the Itasca—which burned to the water's edge at La Crosse at the end of its career—and the Grey Eagle. The race, incidentally, came right past La Crosse's front door, because the Itasca was sailing from Prairie du Chien and the Grey Eagle from Dunleith, further down-stream. The race was to St. Paul.

Captain George B. Merrick, a famous pilot of the upper river well-known to many La Crosse people, tells of the incident in his volume of reminiscences "Old Times on the Upper Mississippi." The Grey Eagle was commanded by Captain D. Smith Harris, and the Itasca by Captain David Whitten. As Captain Merrick describes it:

"One of the captains did not know that he was racing with another boat until he saw the steamer rounding a point just behind him. Recognizing his rival as following him far ahead of her regular time he realized that she was doing something out of the ordinary. He came to the conclusion that Captain Harris was attempting to beat him to St. Paul in order to be the first to deliver certain important news of which he was also the bearer. When this revelation was made, both boats were within a few miles of St. Paul.

"Here are the details. In 1856, the first telegraphic message was flashed under the sea by the Atlantic cable—a greeting from Queen Victoria to President Buchanan. Captain D. Smith Harris had, the year before, brought out the 'Grey Eagle', which had been built at Cincinnati at a cost of $60,000. He had built this boat with his own money, or at least a controlling interest was in his name. He had intended her to be the fastest boat on the upper river, and she was easily that. As her captain and practically her owner, he was at liberty to gratify any whim that might come into his head. In this case it occurred to him that he would like to deliver to St. Paul the Queen's message to the president ahead of any one else.

Was No Telegraph

"There was at that time no telegraph line into St. Paul. Lines ran to Dunleith, where the 'Grey Eagle' was taking in cargo for St. Paul, and also to Prairie du Chien, where the 'Itasca' was loading. Both boats were to leave at six o'clock in the evening. Captain Harris had sixty-one miles further to run than had Captain Whitten. But Harris knew that he was racing, and Whitten did not, which made all the difference in the world.

"Whitten soldiered along at his usual gait, stopping at every landing, putting off cargo at each place, and taking on all that offered, and probably delayed to pass the compliments of the day with agents and other friends, as well as discuss the great message that he was bearing. The 'Grey Eagle', on the contrary, stopped at only a few of the principal landings, and took on no freight after leaving Dunleith. She did not even put off freight that she was carrying, but took it through to St. Paul and delivered it on her return trip. She carried the mail, but in delivering it a man stood on the end of one of the long stages run out from the bow, from which he threw the sacks ashore, the boat in the meantime running along parallel with the levee, and not stopping completely at any landing. Running far ahead of her time, there were no mail sacks ready for her, and there was no reason for stopping. The 'Grey Eagle' had the best of soft coal, reinforced by sundry barrels of pitch, from which the fires were fed whenever they showed any signs of failing. With all these points in her favor, in addition to the prime fact that she was by far the swiftest steamboat that ever turned a wheel on the upper river, it was possible for her to overtake the slower and totally unconcerned "Itasca", when only a few miles from St. Paul.

Won by a Length

"The race proper began when Whitten sighted the 'Grey Eagle' and realized that Harris was trying to beat him into St. Paul in order to be the first to deliver the Queen's message. Then the 'Itasca' did all that was in her to do, and was beaten by less than a length, Harris throwing the message ashore from the roof, attached to a piece of coal, and thus winning the race by a hand-breadth.

"The time of the 'Grey Eagle' from Dunleith, was eighteen hours; the distance, two hundred and ninety miles; speed per hour, 16 1-9 miles.

"The 'Itasca' ran from Prairie du Chien to St. Paul in eighteen hours; distance, two hundred and twenty-nine miles; speed, 12 2-3 miles per hour.

"The 'Itasca' was far from being a slow boat, and had Whitten known that Harris was 'racing' with him, the 'Grey Eagle' would not have come within several hours of catching her.

Remarkable Time

"As a race against time, however, the run of the 'Grey Eagle' was really something remarkable. A sustained speed of over sixteen miles an hour for a distance of three hundred miles, upstream, is a wonderful record for an inland steamboat anywhere, upper river or lower river; and the pride which Captain Harris had in his beautiful boat was fully justified. A few years later, she struck the Rock Island bridge and sunk in less than five minutes, a total wreck. It was pitiful to see the old Captain leaving the wreck, a broken-hearted man, weeping over the loss of his darling, and returning to his Galena home, never again to command a steamboat. He had, during his eventful life on the upper river, built, owned or commanded scores of steamboats; and this was the end."

Of other famous passages of speed on the upper river Captain Merrick has preserved several incidents, perhaps even more interesting in this region than the Robert E. Lee's famous victory because of the fact that they occurred in this neighborhood, so to speak, and because the boats and the men involved were well known to many men and women still living. Here is another interesting passage from Captain Merrick's memoirs:

The Key City's Victory

"The 'Northerner' of the St. Louis line, was a fast boat, and an active contestant for the 'broom.' The boat that could and did run away from, or pass under way, all other boats, signalized here championship by carrying a big broom on her pilot house. When a better boat passed her under way, the ethics of the river demanded that she pull the broom down and retire into seclusion until she in turn should pass the champion and thus regain her title. The struggle on the upper river lay between the 'Northerner' and the 'Key City.' The 'Grey Eagle' was in a class by herself, and none other disputed her claims, while actively disputing those of all others of the Minnesota Packet company, of which the 'Key City' was the champion and defender.

"The two rivals got together at Hudson, twenty miles up Lake St. Croix—whether by accident or agreement it is impossible to say, but probably by agreement. They had twenty miles of deep water, two miles wide, with only four close places to run. It was a fair field for a race, and they ran a fair and fine one. For miles they were side by side. Sometimes a spurt would be put on a little ahead; and again the other would get a trifle the most steam and the deepest water, and creep ahead a little. When they came into Prescott, at the foot of the lake, the 'Key City' was a clear length ahead, her engineers having saved a barrel or two of resin for the home stretch. With this lead she had the right of way to turn the point and head up the river. Ned West was at the wheel, with an assistant to 'pull her down' for him, and he made a beautiful turn with his long and narrow craft; while the 'Northerner' had to slow down and wait a minute or two before making the turn. In the meantime the 'Key City's' whistles were blowing, her bell ringing, and her passengers and crew cheering, while a man climbed to the roof of the pilot house and lashed the broom to the finial at the top, the crown of laurels for the victor.

Drops Barge to Win

"The lower river stern-wheel steamer 'Messenger' was also a very fast boat. On one occasion she came very near wresting the broom from the 'Key City' in a race through Lake Pepin, where also there was plenty of water and sea room. The 'Key City' had a barge in tow and thus was handicapped. The 'Messenger' seemed, therefore, likely to win the race, as she had passed the former under way. Within four miles of the head of the lake, Capt. Worden of the 'Key City' ordered the barge cast adrift, having placed a few men on board of it, with an anchor and cable to use in case of necessity. Thus freed from the encumbrance, he put on steam and passed his rival before reaching Wacouta. In spite of the strenuous efforts on the part of the 'Messenger' to render the maneuver unsafe, Worden crossed bow, and circling around her ran back and picked up his barge.

"In this race, it was said by passengers who were on board the two boats, that the flames actually blazed from the tops of the tall chimneys of both craft; and on both, men were stationed on the roof playing streams of water from lines of hose on the chimney breechings, to prevent the decks from igniting. Under such conditions it is easy to see how a boat might catch fire and burn. And yet the passengers liked it. Had they been the owners of casks of hams, as legend relates of a passenger on a lower river boat under like circumstances, there is no doubt they would have made an oblation of them to the gods of heat and steam, rather than have the other boat win.

The Earliest Race

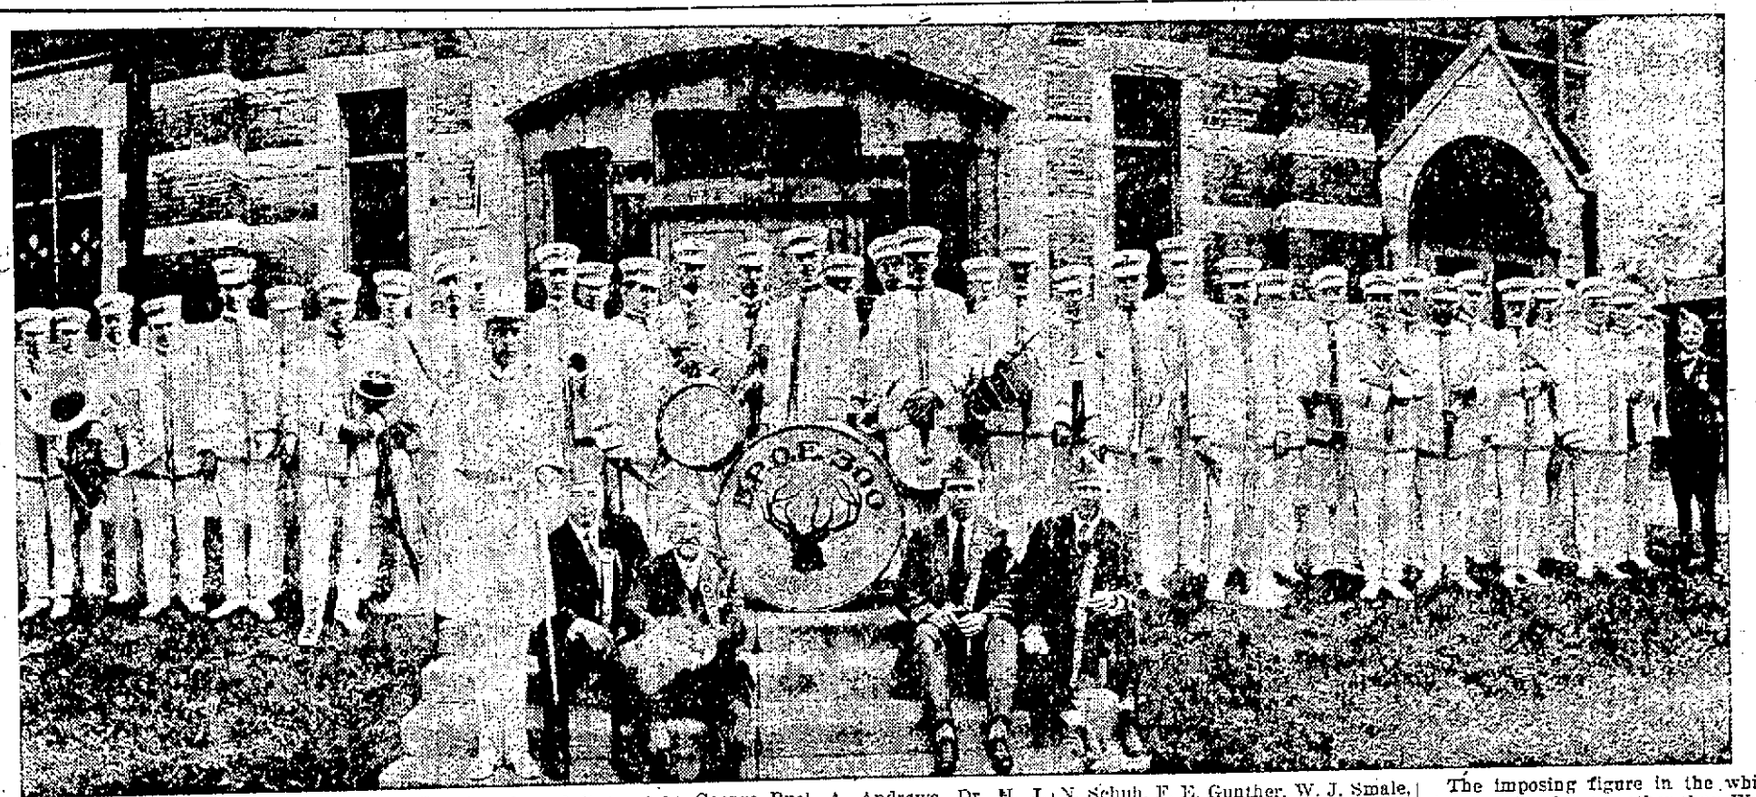

"The earliest recorded race run on the upper river was that between the 'Nominee,' owned and commanded by Captain Orren Smith, and the 'West Newton' (Captain Daniel Smith Harris), in 1852. In this event but one actually ran, for Harris had no confidence in the ability of his boat to win, and not possessing the temper that would brook defeat, he declined to start. The 'Nominee' completed the run from Galena to St. Paul and return, a distance of seven hundred miles, making all landings and handling all freight and passengers, in fifty-five hours and forty-nine minutes, an average rate of speed of 12½ miles an hour, half of it against and half with the current. This was good running, for the boats of that time. As there was no other boat to compete for the honor, the 'Nominee' carried the broom until she sank at Britt's Landing below La Crosse, in 1854.

"Durnell, in his very interesting History of Winona, says:

Tied Up On Sunday

"'Captain Orren Smith was a very devout man; and while he might indulge in racing, for the honor of his boat, he believed in keeping the Sabbath; and as long as he owned the boats which he commanded he would not run a minute after 12 o'clock Saturday night, but would tie his boat to the bank, wherever it might be, and remain at rest until the night following at 12 o'clock, when he would resume the onward course of his trip. If a landing could be made near a village or settlement where religious services could be held, the people were invited on board on Sunday, and if no minister of the gospel was at hand, the zealous captain would lead in such service as suited his ideas of duty. But the captain's reverence and caution did not save his boat, and she sank below La Crosse in the autumn of 1854.'"

HERE'S THE ELKS' BAND AT MILWAUKEE

The accompanying picture was taken just before the start of the Elks convention and carnival parade at Milwaukee, while the La Crosse Elks band, which made the hit of the gathering was waiting to take its place in line. Reading from left to right the players are Roy Graves, I. Marking, Theo. Solie, S. Opsahl, Paul Witzke, R. Temp, Rudolph Bergh, M. Swennes, Hugo Moosbrugger, S. Peterson, E. von Wald, W. A. Howard, George Buel, A. Andrews, Dr. H. J. Hansen, A. Withee, Geo. Bischoffsky, Ray Keeler, M. Lier, Emil Erickson, M. Smevog, H. Lee, O. Mattson, Ewald Deters, Lee Falen, G. Callaway, Ed Beranek, Felix Beranek, A. N. Schuh, F. E. Gunther, W. J. Smale, Howard Sopsh, Wilbur Holcomb, J. Nelson and S. Soreason.

The little figure on the extreme right is not a player. It is the mascot, or something like that, alias F. H. Burgess.

The imposing figure in the white six-quart hat is none other than Walter Holmes, who plays the whistle for the band.

Seated are John Salzer, George Salzer (The Governor), Charles Collins and James Hodge.

LA CRESCENT WOMAN IS GRANTED PREACHER'S LICENSE IN THE METHODIST CHURCH

Miss Frances Willard Thompson, of La Crescent is the first young woman to be granted a local preacher's license in the Winona district, Minnesota conference of the Methodist Episcopal church. It was voted to her at the fourth quarterly conference held at Dakota, Minn., and signed by Rev. John W. Taylor, D. D., district superintendent.

Miss Thompson is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Wm. E. Thompson of La Crescent. She was born at Grand Meadow, Mower, county, Minn., on March 13, 1898. The name given her was that of the noted temperance worker who died in the month of February of the same year. It was suggested by the first flower, a calla lily blossom, brought into the parsonage the morning of her birth. It will be remembered that flower was Miss Willard's favorite. When only 1½ years old, with her parents and older brother Fawcett, Miss Thompson made a trip to England, Ireland and Wales and return, remaining there about a year. She attended the grade schools at Harmony, Minn., Washington and Madison schools, Winona, graduating in 1910 from the eighth grade at the latter. She entered the Camian Falls High school in 1911 graduating therefrom in 1915 at the head of her class winning a one year scholarship at Hamline university. In the spring of 1919 she finished the university course, majoring in literature and biology, and was granted the degree of A. B. During her junior year she was president of the Sigma Delta Literary society and a member of the Girl's Glee club. During her senior year she was a member of the student council; president of the Intercollegiate Prohibition association; a member of the Student Volunteer society and Dramatic club.

During the year since graduation from Hamline she taught in the La Crescent public schools, and is engaged for next year to teach English and music in the consolidated schools high school deparument at Comfrey, Brown county, Minn.

Miss Thompson united with the Methodist church at Harmony, Minn., in 1906 at the early age of eight and one-half years. Since that time she has taken an active interest in all church activities suited to her age.

SHOW AUTO TOURS ABOUT THE CITY IN NEW PAMPHLET

"Auto Tours Around La Crosse" is the title of an interesting and instructive hand-book gotten out by the Automobile Club of Western Wisconsin and just off the press.

With the cover showing a picture of the Mississippi river and wagon bridge at La Crosse, the 52 pages of the pamphlet are brimful of information about scenic highways around this city. Twelve tours out of La Crosse are described in minute detail, with distances and word pictures of the scenery enroute in addition to diagrams of the trips, marking each writeup.

In addition there is information given concerning the Wisconsin system of marking roads, and other matters of interest to motorists. To cover the cost of publication, the Automobile club is selling these hand-books for 25 cents, at headquarters in the Chamber of Commerce building.

AWAKENS TO SEE HIS PANTS GO OUT WINDOW

TOLEDO.—The cops here have in hand the investigation of the strange case of the vanishing pants. The pants, is or was, are or were, the property of C. L. Kehr. Kehr took off his trousers and went to bed. He was awakened by a slight noise and saw his trousers, suspended from a hook on the end of a fishing line tied to a pole, swaying their way through his window. The mystery angler escaped Kehr's pursuit.

STREET TRADES LAW WILL BE ENFORCED IN CITY OF LA CROSSE BY A WOMAN

The supervisor of attendance and vocational guidance of the public schools, Miss Josephine Hintgen, will be the supervisor of the city street trades law in La Crosse.

"The city street trade law as originally enacted applied only to the city of Milwaukee but in 1919 it was amended so that its application is general," said Miss Hintgen in an interview. "This law was passed by the citizens of the state because of their interest in the growth and well-being of its youthful citizens. All parents wish to give to their children all the protection that the street trades law provides and it is for that reason that we wish to put before the public the essential provisions of the law. This law does not only take note of the age of individuals engaged in the street trades but also the hours in which the work can be carried on. The public realizes that heavy work for boys below the age of twelve is not any help to further their growth and at the same time realizes that night work or very early morning work on the streets will not aid them physically or mentally.

"The city is very anxious to cooperate all its forces with the industrial commission which has the general supervision of minors engaged in the street trades. There are at the present time about ninety boys in this city who have permits and come under the street trades law."

Is the boy who is carrying the paper to your door wearing a badge? Did the boy who sold you a paper on the street corner have a badge? Did the boy who blackened your boots on thes treet wear a badge? The badge is a round steel plate the size of a half dollar on which is written La Crosse street trades and a number. The badge signifies that the boy to whom it was given has complied with all of the provisions of the law. The patrons of the boys engaged in any street trade can do much to aid in the enforcement of the law by knowing that the boy who brings the paper to their door, who sells papers to them on the street corner, or who blackens their boots is wearing his badge. In case there is any doubt in your mind as to whether the individual you see engaged in a street trade is complying with the law, call the office of the board of education and report the case to Miss Hintgen.

The duties and obligations of any one entering the street trades as outlined by Miss Hintgen follow:

"1. No boy under the age of twelve years and no girl under the age of eighteen years shall work at any time in the business of distributing, soliciting, selling articles, magazines, or periodicals or employment as a bootblack in any street, alley, court, square or public place without a permit.

"2. All boys between the ages of twelve and seventeen must obtain a street permit before they can carry newspapers, periodicals, or engage in any street trade. When applying for permit, the child must obtain an application for permit. The application must be signed by parent or guardian and by the principal of the public or parochial school. The principal will not sign the application unless the child is an attendant at such school and if his school work and deportment is of such standing that will warrant the child carrying on the outside work beside the regular school work. The application must be accompanied by a birth certificate or baptismal certificate. The receiver of such permit will receive a badge which signifies that he has complied with all the rules. The fee for such badge is twenty-five cents which, upon the expiration of permit and return of badge, will be refunded. No badge or permit can be transferred from one person to another. A brother of the regular carrier cannot carry papers for his brother or help him, unless he has a separate permit. The badge must be worn conspicuously in sight at all times when the individual is engaged in street trade.

"3. The hours in which the owner of such permit cannot work are before five in the morning, after seven-thirty at night, or during the hours when the schools are in session.

"4. Any violation of the provisions or misrepresentation of facts will result in having the permit revoked. A second violation may result in bringing the child before the juvenile court. Any employer who employs a minor without a permit shall be punished by a fine.

"All permits and badges will be issued by Miss Hintgen in the office of the superintendent at the high school. The hours at which such permits will be issued are from eight to eight-thirty every day but Saturday when they can be obtained from nine-thirty to twelve.

"To insure the enforcement of the law which is solely for the interests of the boys of this city, the teachers of public and parochial schools, the Y. M. C. A., the Tribune and Leader-Press, the patrons of the Tribune and Leader-Press, the supervisor of attendance and the police department are co-operating in this movement."

GOLDEN WEDDING OF WELL KNOWN COUPLE OBSERVED

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Schams Celebrate Fiftieth Anniversary of Marriage

ONE of the particularly happy social events of the past week was the celebration of the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Schams, at their handsome farm home on St. Joseph's ridge, just at the head of Irish hill road.

Having the distinction of being the first couple married in St. Joseph's cathedral in this city and having lived all their married life on the same farm, Mr. and Mrs. Schams have a wide acquaintance in this county, and their friends are legion.

They enjoy recalling that they had $10 apiece the day they were married, and with this tiny stake they set out to clear the farm on St. Joseph's ridge and make a home for themselves. Both husband and wife worked hard, and success crowned their efforts. Mr. Schams became a dealer in livestock, and in a few years became prosperous.

Nine children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Schams and seven survive. They are Joseph, La Crosse; Frank, Bostwick Valley; John and Edward, who conduct the Schams packing house in the south end of the city; Louis, a meat dealer; George, who is on the home farm on St. Joseph's Ridge; and Anna, wife of C. F. Oertel of the Hygienic Dairy Farms.

With their children, grand children and one great grandchild present, Mr. and Mrs. Schams celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage last Sunday. A few intimate friends were invited in to spend the day, and many called to congratulate the couple. To Miss Julia Morris, sister of Thomas Morris, fell the honor of cutting the wedding cake. Each of the children presented Mr. and Mrs. Schams with a gold piece.

NUMEROUS RUSHFORD COUPLES ARE ADDED TO MARRIAGE RANKS

RUSHFORD, Minn., Sept. 18—(Special)—Rushford people are especially interested in the marriage of Mr. Francis Smith of this city, who took for his bride recently Miss Marguerite Little, of Appleton, Minn., the ceremony being performed at high noon, by Rev. Stanley Jones, of Milbank, S. D., and Gethsemane Episcopal church, of Appleton being the place chosen by the young couple in which to exchange their vows. The auditorium of the church was used and was decorated beautifully with ferns, gladioli and sweet-peas. The bride's sister, Miss Dorothy Little, acted as bridesmaid and the bridegroom's brother, Matthew Smith, acted as best man. After the ceremony a reception and luncheon followed at the home of the bride's parents, Dr. and Mrs. D. W. Little. On the same day, Mr. and Mrs. Smith left for their wedding trip to Itasca Park and afterwards will be at home to their friends in Rushford, where Mr. Smith recently purchased a cozy bungalow on Stevens' Avenue. The bride is a comparative stranger to the Rushford people, but by those who are fortunate enough to have met her, is known as a most charming young lady, of many accomplishments. Mr. Smith is a Rushford young man who was born and raised in the city. He is an ex-service man, having enlisted at the beginning of the World War and was made Lieutenant before it's close. He is now in partnership with his father, H. M. Smith, in the mercantile business. He is a popular member of the younger set and is active in the affairs of the American Legion Post, of this city, of which organization, he is commander.

Another Rushford young man who has recently entered the order of Benedicts, is Orrin J. Tagland, a son of Mr. and Mrs. O. Tagland, who won for his bride Miss Stella Stadsvold, of Fosston, Minn., the marriage taking place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Stadsvold. The officiating clergyman was Rev. J. O. Sueter. The young people's attendants were Mrs. W. E. Pearson, sister of the bride and Francis Stadsvold, the bride's brother. Mrs. Pearson's little daughter, Frances, acted as ring-bearer. The living-room, scene of the marriage, was beautiful in decorations of white and pink, the tables spread for the wedding banquet also being decorated in these colors, sweet-peas and cathedral candles being used. Mr. and Mrs. Tagland departed for a wedding-trip to Detroit and Buffalo and upon their return will reside in Fosston, where the bridegroom has dental parlors.

At the last regular meeting of the Tonborg school district, a fine program was enjoyed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. Eischen. About thirty people, young and old, were present. Several instrumental solos were given by Miss Anna Eischen and greatly enjoyed, while a trio of young men—Raymond Eischen, Cecil Beljech and Kenneth Sheldahl—gave a short program of songs which pleased. Games of various kinds made the evening pass quickly. A fine luncheon was served before the guests dispersed.

Various Rushford young men and women have taken up work as instructors in schools at distant points; among them being Miss Grace Layne, who will teach in the schools at Fountain, Minn.; Dora Swenson, at Twin Lakes, Minn.; Geneva Selvig, at Harmony, Minn.; Helen Culhane, at Madelia; Madeline Bjerke, at Owatonna; Alice Kierland at Fosston; Ona Rowlee at St. Elmo; Clara Kjos at Preston; Thora Magleson and Eva Parish, at Seattle, Wash.; Lily Engh, at Harmony, Minn.; Helena Olson, to Minneapolis; Anna Wright and Miss Steeland, also at Minneapolis.

Miss Ruzette Hendrix, State W. C. T. U. President, will be the guest of honor at a social-hour gathering, to be held at the home of A. Vaagen and daughters, of Stevens' Avenue, next Thursday afternoon, at three o'clock. This is the last year of Miss Hendrix' service in this branch of the W. C. T. U. as her many arduous duties are telling greatly upon both mind and body and she is to resign at the end of the year. She will speak at the above-mentioned meeting, upon the great topics of the day. A luncheon will be served after the program. In the evening of the same day, Miss Hendrix will address the people of the city at the First Presbyterian church and at this time, there also will be enjoyed a short musical program. Admission to both afternoon and evening gatherings will be free but at the church, a free-will collection will be taken to help defray expenses.

The guild of Emmanuel church served luncheon last Wednesday at the Parish house: Mesdames John Kahoun, Seecamp and Twitchell and Miss Emma Crampton acting as hostesses.

Mr. and Mrs. Obert Morken, who were recently married, have returned from their wedding-trip to Minneapolis and St. Paul and have commenced housekeeping upon the Morken farm, in Root River valley, near Houston. The bride was formerly Miss Cora Ekre, daughter of Mr. C. J. Ekre at whose home the marriage took place. A luncheon was served upon the lawn of the home after the ceremony. Fifty guests were present at ceremony and luncheon.

One hundred and fifty self-invited guests invaded the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Westby, of Bratsberg, recently, and aided that worthy couple in celebrating their silver-wedding anniversary. They were presented with a silver coffee-set. A sumptuous dinner and supper were served.

Programs for the two-days' Fall Festival to be held here next week, Sept. 23-24, are now out and awaken great interest. An address by the Rushford mayor, a slow Ford race, funmaking by the Red Cross clown, a pie-eating contest for boys, a girls' running race, acts by the Stiener Trio and the Jean Jackson Trio and a ball game, will be features of the first day; while the second day will be equally as interesting. The Lanesboro, Minn., band will furnish music both days.

Mrs. A. A. Abrahamson, of Lanesboro, with her son, Aldis, and his family of Houston, Minn., have been recent guests of their many Rushford friends.

BRITISH PRESS IN ATTACKS ON WASTE OF PUBLIC MONEY

Object to Financing of War Plans Within Russia by Great Britain

LONDON.—British papers are printing almost daily examples of what they term the waste of public funds. A report just issued by the committee of public accounts sheds fresh light on the subject. Nearly $8,500,000 was involved, it appears in the government's plan to finance the Russian General Alexieff just before the bolshevik revolution had brought about his collapse. Part of the plan was to set up a Cossack State bank in Siberia, and for that purpose $2,500,000 was loaned to a Russian financier. But the bank was never set up and the committee wants to know what became of the money.

The ministry of munitions paid $12,250,000 for a plant begun in 1917 and which, when the war ended, was only half finished. For this outlay, the committee points out, the country received no benefit whatever except through the "stimulus to the steel trade."

Waste of nearly $500,000 is charged by the committee to the admiralty on a scheme for establishing schools to train boys in pneumatic riveting.

Cases are referred to by the committee where government officers holding responsible positions allotted contracts either to themselves of to firms in which they were interested. Such cases, the committee asserts, "are especially liable to become an occasion for scandals."

BRAZILIAN CONGRESS PLANS LAWS TO MEET HOUSING SITUATION

Consider Bill to Provide Funds for Construction of Homes for Working People

RIO DE JANEIRO—Both federal and municipal governments are about to take action to relieve the shortage of houses here.

In the Chambers of Deputies a bill has been introduced providing for a special bond issue of $50,000,000 for the construction of houses for working families. In the Municipal Council a measure was presented providing that all workers' houses built in the next two years be free from the usual municipal taxes.

The federal bill proposes the construction, under the municipal administration, of 20,000 houses in various districts of the capital wherever nationally or municipally owned ground is available. It is intended that the houses shall be sold to heads of working families, payment being spread over a period of 20 years. In addition, the bill provides for the construction of two huge apartment houses, for families and for bachelors, respectively, with common kitchens and other communal installations, the rent being placed at a very low figure.

In Their Place— What Would You Have Done?

This was the situation:

The Overland had no serious competition at its price, and at its price it had no competition as to quality.

Overland plants were working to capacity, 600,000 Overlands had been sold, and a continent was clamoring for more.

Then the Overland organization became concerned about the price of gasoline.

Now, gasoline is not Overland business, but it becomes Overland business when the welfare of Overland owners is at stake.

The sale of an Overland is the beginning and not the end of Overland interest in the man or woman who buys it.

So Overland designers were told:

"Gasoline is continually going up. Every cent advance increases the upkeep of the Overland. Go back to your draughting boards and bring it down!"

Months and months of experiment!

Millions and millions of expense!

And then, up and out of the Valley of Dilemma, leaping into the road like a thing possessed—

A GREATER OVERLAND, built of light alloy steels, mounted on the famous Suspension Triplex Spring, and giving unheard-of mileage out of every gallon of gas in her tank!

Overland designers said: "We don't know what it cost to create, but we do know that it will cost six millions to get ready to use it!"

The answer was: "The public has stood by the Overland, the Overland must stand by the public. Go ahead and equip your plants to produce it."

$6,000,000 for an ideal!

In the Overland Company's place, what would you have done?

Some organizations would have said: "The present Overland is good enough. Why quarrel with success?"

But the Overland theory is, that nothing is good enough that can conceivably be better, and that the great family of Overland owners have placed upon the Overland Company an obligation, not only to produce, but to progress!

In that spirit, the Overland was created.

In that spirit, the Overland is presented.

And now, in that spirit, let us get together!

AT CASINO TODAY AND MONDAY

Virginia Faire
UNIVERSAL

Winner of New York city's popularity contest, appearing in "Under Northern Lights."

RIVOLI

The Rivoli opens its doors to the public today with, Norma Talmadge in "Yes or No." A special opening program has been arranged for the opening, surrounded with synchronizing music. The short subjects on the bill will be as follows, "The Great Mirror," a Robert Bruce scenic, and "Four Times Foiled," an animal comedy featuring Alexander the chimpanzee star.

"Yes or No" is a study of contrasts. In this picture Miss Talmadge plays a dual role, which she handles in an excellent manner. As Minnie Berry in the gingham and with hair bedraggled, this delightful actress is good to look upon, while in her gorgeous wardrobe she has equipped herself with for Margaret Vane her beauty irresistable.

In making this picture unusual care was taken in the making of the indoor scenes. The scenes taken of the Berry home were shot in a lower East Side tenement in New York city, and the settings for the society end of the picture are actual scenes in one of the famous homes of wealth which abound in the metropolis.

LA CROSSE

The La Crosse offers their usual Sunday vaudeville. Clifford and Leslie will be seen in a comedy singing and talking act. Willard Hutchinson & Co., will offer a comedy sketch, "Dropping a Hint." Scott and Ford in songs and dances. Mike Bernard billed as "The Ragtime King," will entertain with jazz tunes and a pianologue. The Randow Trio, two men and a woman offer a routine of acrobatic feats. Ford Educational Weekly and "Too Many Burglars," comedy completes the bill.

MAJESTIC

Emmy Wehlen returns to the screen in "Lifting Shadows," a gripping tale of romance and intrigues. This picture will be at the Majestic for today only. "Lifting Shadows," is the story of a Russian peasant girl who fled to the United States. She married an American, thereby gaining the rights of an American citizen. Five years later when the shadow of her past found her and haunted her, she stood up, for the land of her adoption.

As this cloud was not dark enough she shot her degenerate husband. She is acquitted of the murder, in her soul she believed she committed the crime. These shadows overcast her love for a clean-hearted, wholesouled American until the clouds were turned inside out to show their silver lining.

Stuart Holmes and Wyndham Standing are in the supporting cast. A comedy and Fox News are also on the bill.

BIJOU

If a stranger wants a sure way to reach success in a small town he should hunt up town gossip, this is the dramatic evidence offered in "The Fortune Hunter," at the Bijou for the last times today. This story sets forth through its unusual dramatic comedy that there is an heiress and a gossip in every small town; and that the heiress is going to waste for the lack of a marriageable suitor, and that the gossiper will inform the stranger of the necessary fact in five minutes.

"The Fortune Hunter," is taken from the stage play of the same name and is starring Earle Williams. Mr. Williams, as Nat Dunham, plays the best role of his career. "Won By a Nose" a big U comedy is also on the same bill.

CASINO

"Under Northern Lights," with an all star cast, at the Casino has been enjoyed by all the patrons of this popular theater that saw this picture yesterday. The theme is a rather old one but is put over in such fine style that one does not notice the oldness of it.

Douglas MacLeod a member of the Northwest mounted police is forced to imprison the brother of the girl he loves; of the eternal struggle between love and duty, and between the forces of lawlessness and order.

In the cast are Virginia Fair, winner of last year's fame and fortune contest held in New York city, Leonard Clapham, and William Buckley. It's a good picture and abounds in thrills and surprises. Episode number eight of "The Evil Eye," completes the bill.

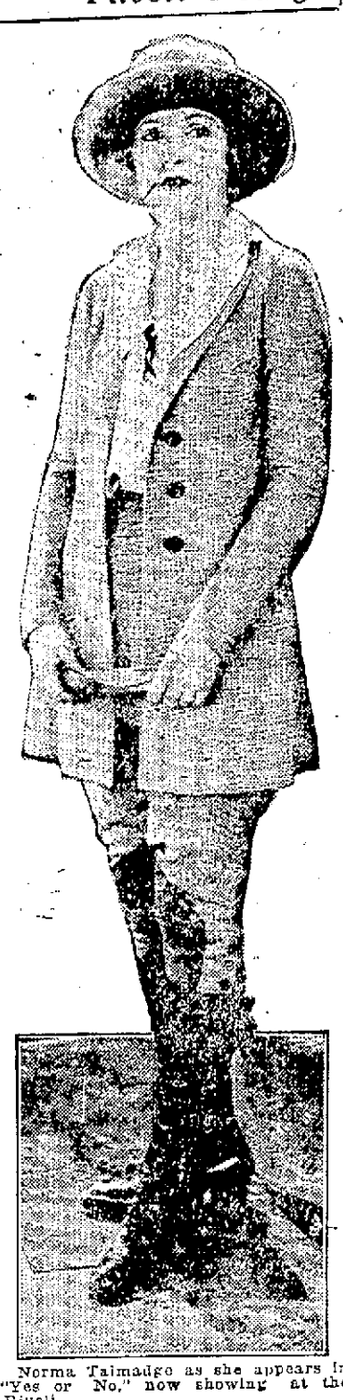

STRAND

William Russel in "A Live Wire Hick," will be the attraction at the Strand today. This picture is Mr. Russel's first attempt at playing a Charles Ray role, a bashful country boy in a big city. He has exceeded all expectations in this line and it was thoroughly enjoyed at one of the houses last evening by the sound of the laughter. Episode number eight of "The Vanishing Dagger" completes the bill.

RIALTO

Katherine MacDonald in "The Notorious Miss Lisle," will move from the Majestic to the Rialto today. This picture has been reviewed in this column before so it will not be necessary to go into detail. It is a thoroughly enjoyable picture and Miss MacDonald may be seen at her best. Larry Semon in "The Head Waiter" completes the bill.

FAMILY REUNION BRINGS TOGETHER OLD TIME CITIZENS

Nearly Forty Descendants of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hanton Meet at Bangor and Salem

Thirty-eight children, grand-children and great-grand-children of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hanton of Burns Valley and Bangor, attended a reunion during the past week at the John McKinley home near Bangor.

The Hanton's were among the pioneer settlers of this part of the country, coming to Burns Valley in 1856. Since then the family has widely scattered so that the only members now living in this vicinity are Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Bowen and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bowen of Bangor, and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Waite and Mr. and Mrs. John McKinley of West Salem. They entertained at their home the guests for the reunion. Most of them came in autos, and while in the country visited the old Hanton and Bowen places in Burns Valley and many other points remembered from their childhood days.

The hardihood of the pioneers of the Valley was demonstrated by the activity of Joe Hanton, Dave Noble and Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Bowen, who, although close to the four-score mark, were prominent figures in the celebration. Oscar Bowen surprised the younger generation by his athletic prowess, and his good wife astonished the women by getting up a big farewell dinner for her guests.

During their stay in the country, the visitors were busy renewing acquaintances with their many friends in West Salem, Bangor, Sparta, La Crosse and surrounding towns. Many were born here and lived here in their early days; others had never been here and a few of the family had never seen each other before. Altogether it was an extremely happy reunion and the Hanton's plan to make it an annual event.

Those present were, Joe Hanton, Mondovi; Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Bowen, Bangor; Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Hanton, Superior; Mr. and Mrs. Dave Noble, Windom; Mr. and Mrs. John Bowen, Barron; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bowen, Augusta; Mr and Mrs. Roy Bowen and children of Bangor; Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Waite and daughter, Dorothy, West Salem; Mr. and Mrs. John McKinley of West Salem; Mrs. Gertrude Hebert and son, Delmar, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Geiger and Mr. and Mrs. B. T. Smith and son, Bernie, Minneapolis; Mr. and Mrs. Martin Quaberg and son, Royce, and Mr. and Mrs. John Legore, Mondovi; Art and Carl Hanton, Superior; Joe, Jessie and Bertha Noble, Sioux City, Windom, and Sheldon, Ia.

THINGS MUSICAL

By H. MARGARET JOSTEN

NO sign of the times is more heartening than the announcement that the local post of the American Legion is bringing to La Crosse an entertainment course which includes four good programs of music. The men are showing a fine spirit of service to the community in attempting to give their fellow townsmen these several evenings of worth while pleasure and are setting a standard of communal endeavor which deserves enthusiastic support.

Through the Redpath Lyceum bureau entertainments have been secured which seem both popular enough to please any audience and of such a quality as to satisfy the most critical. As yet only the opening date has been set. The first concert will be given by the Great Lakes String Quartet at the La Crosse theater Monday, October fourth. This quartet gained considerable fame when it was chosen to accompany President Wilson upon his visit to France. They have moreover inspired much favorable criticism during the tour that succeeded their return to civilian life, and are said to combine the "zeal and enthusiasm of youth" with a sincere understanding and appreciation of the best in both classic and modern music.

Later in the season Bohumir Kryl, the most famous cornetist in this country, with his daughters Josephine Kryl, violinist, and Marie Kryl pianist, will be heard here. The Landis Singing Orchestra and Paulo Gruppe, violincellist, will give the two other concerts. Tickets for the course are in the hands of the members of the legion and are selling for three dollars. The date of reservation will be announced later.

* * * *

The Pavley-Oukrainsky Ballet, coming to the La Crosse theater on October first, brings with it besides the Philharmonic orchestra of twenty-six pieces, its own scenery, stage and lighting effects. The production is up to metropolitan standards as to completeness of detail.

This spring after having appeared throughout the opera season in Chicago, the ballet put on its own performance at the Auditorium there on April 17 and despite the immense seating capacity of the Auditorium two thousand people were turned away.

* * * *

Miss Myrna Sharlow whose concert is the first number on the Normal course, is a young woman from the middle west and her training is entirely American. Although the record of having a wholly American musical education will undoubtedly become yearly less uncommon it is still sufficiently rare to find a singer who has achieved fame without the experience of a foreign training to make it noteworthy.

Miss Shadow attracted the attention of Marcus Epstein, one of the directors of the Beethoven Conservatory of Music in St. Louis, who was so impressed by the possibilities he believed he had heard in her voice that he offered to provide her free instruction. After several years of work in St. Louis she studied with Frederick E. Bristol with whom Clement and Fremstad have coached. So great was her success that in 1912 when only nineteen years old she was able to associate herself with the Boston Opera company.

Her success was marked and from that time her progress has been striking. Each season since then she has appeared in opera while in the fall months she has often made a concert tour as she is doing this fall. Although since her debut in opera she has sung on the continent and in England, she never studied there and is in fact no little proud that her success has been achieved with a purely American education.

There will be music on the pike this week. Not Brahms nor Beethoven to be sure, but just the right kind of music for the right kind of a pike. In the high school tent a group of boys and girls are going to give the latest Broadway song hits. The music may be forgotten a year from now, but it is good nevertheless to hear, for it is full of the lilt of youth. Whether one's tastes run to jazz or the classics, he'll like this, it is so jolly and unsophisticated. To hear Zita McDonough's silvery little voice singing "See Saw," or William Birnbaum's silvery baritone in "Hello Imagination," gives one a pleased sense that after all perhaps youth is more satisfying than art. The choruses in their pretty costumes, eager young feet dancing to the gay music, promise to make it an attractive act.

They'll be singing for a purpose, too, for the net proceeds will go toward the purchase of a grand piano for the high school.

CHANDLER SIX

Chandler Leadership is Established by Its Superior Service

The Chandler is a handsome car of distinguished gracefulness in each of its models, roomy and restful in its seating arrangements, splendidly upholstered and finished. Its character and beauty appeal to the discriminating.

These qualities are an outer mark of what is underneath. Chandler leadership among all sixes is founded primarily on the excellence of the one standard chassis. The Chandler holds this leadership because of its superiority of service to its host of owners, the desired performance under all conditions and the genuine satisfaction which it gives them.

The Chandler Leads, Too, Because of the Fairness of its Price

An oversold production has never marked up the Chandler price. Cars which were competitive with the Chandler two years ago are not competitive today. You can prove this for yourself by a careful comparison.

Let us show you how the Chandler checks in essential features of construction with many of the highest priced cars, and how cars priced at hundreds of dollars more than the Chandler do not check.

ON WEDNESDAY evening there was celebrated at Caledonia the golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Wheaton, uncle and aunt of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Wheaton and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Wheaton of the city.

At 7 p. m. the bride and groom preceded by little Helen Webster, the flower girl, and accompanied by Mrs. O. G. Wall, matron of honor, and Mr. F. A. Duxbury, best man, proceeded to the sound of Lohengrin wedding march to a bower of green and gold on the porch where hand in hand they renewed the vows of faithfulness and love made fifty years before, Rev. J. C. Williamson officiating. They then received the congratulations of the gathering who filed past them in a long line. During the festivities Mrs. Wheaton was presented by the guests with a handsome cameo pin, beautifully set with gold and pearls, while Mr. Wheaton was remembered with a gold headed cane. The directors of the Caledonia State bank presented the couple with a beautiful clock.

Much of the enjoyment and success of the occasion was due to the management of the friends who volunteered their assistance. In general charge was Mrs. Robert Shadbolt who was assisted in decorating by a group of ladies.

Following the ceremony a cafeteria luncheon was served. The house was a bower of beauty in green sprays studded with yellow, white and golden flowers.

During the evening Mrs. Cochrane presided at the punch bowl on the porch, while a large heart-shaped wedding cake was served by Mrs. Shadbolt.

Mr. and Mrs. Wheaton received thirty-three letters and four telegrams from friends and relatives who regretted their inability to attend but sent congratulations.

Mr. and Mrs. Wheaton have always been interested in and active supporters of all movements that looked toward the betterment of conditions of life in their community and country and in their long lives of service here have bound to themselves hosts of friends. H. C. OF L. AND LACK OF WORK WORRIES HUNGARY

Claims 100,000 Men are Without Employment or Earning Small Sums

BUDAPEST.—"No work and high prices are making Hungary a trouble center," said Count Etienne Crouy Chanel, who claims to be the most legitimate candidate for the throne of Hungary.

"We have here upwards of 100,000 workmen who are either without work or else have to work for 1,000 crowns a month, the price of a pair of shoes," he continued. "Besides them, we have 150,000 government employes left over from old Hungary whose pay is about that of the workmen. Then we have 50,000 army officers who insist that they be paid. Then there is a large number of landowners from the provinces given to Serbia, the Czechs and the Rumanians, who have no means of livelihood, having been driven from their lands.

"When these people begin considering their troubles, they turn to the wealthy Jews as the cause, or else to the communists, and therein lies the origin of the so-called 'white terror.'

"The immediate solution for these people is to emigrate but for that they have not the money or else cannot secure passports. They cannot become farmers overnight. Even if the government divided the land they would need to learn to farm and would need capital to build houses and buy machinery. The factories cannot start because of lack of coal and raw materials."

"Hungary has lost more than any nation in Europe by the peace treaty. In addition she has had two costly revolutions. It is no wonder our minds are deranged.

"It would be a charity if our surplus educated population was helped to emigrate to South America or some country where it could start life anew."

GEORGE BUNGE TO FIGURE IN LINEUP OF VARSITY SQUAD

Local Gridiron Star Reports to Coach Richards for First Workouts of Season

MAY BE SHIFTED FROM GUARD TO CENTER POSITION

La Crosse Man in Line for Football Manager

BY BILL WALKER

George Bunge, La Crosse's chief representative on the 'varsity football squad this fall, was on hand to report with eight other veterans and a host of new candidates at the first workouts of the season. Bunge is sure of a job in the line.

Whether he will be used at his position of guard where he performed credibly last year or will be used to fill ex-Captain Carpenter's shoes at center is the subject of much gossip among Wisconsin dopesters.

Bunge's position will depend to some extent on the eligibility of other available candidates. Brumm, star center on the frosh team last year, is expected to return and if he is eligible he may be used at the center's job. McMurry, Carpenter's understudy last season, has reported and will be a possible bidder for the pivot.

Bunge has had considerable experience at center. During part of his high school career and his first year on the frosh squad he played in this position. Joining the varsity last year, however, with Captain Carpenter sure of the center's job, Bunge was shifted to guard.

La Crosse Manager

A La Crosse man is in line for the job of football manager or assistant football manager at the university this fall following the failure of Hanson, elected manager last fall, to return to school.

Tom Stavrum reported to assist with the issuing of uniforms at the first workout on Wednesday. If Hanson does not put in an appearance next week, and he is not expected to return, a new manager will be elected at the first meeting of the athletic council this year.

And instead of joyous cackles

BANNER SEASON IS OUTLOOK FOR ELKS' BOWLING LEAGUE

Turnout is Large as Compared With Initial Meeting Held Last Year

Judging from the number of names coming in, and from the interest manifested by members at the initial meeting of the club held last week, officials of the Elks' Bowling league promise a banner year for the organization this season. As compared with the turnout at the initial meeting last year, the number who came out last week for the meeting outnumbered them three times, and together with apparent interest on the part of the applicants for admission to the league, participants are looking forward to a successful year.

The teams will be made up of the names sent in to the committee in charge, and in order to avert disappointment, interested bowlers are urged to forward their names to the committee as soon as possible, officials say. It is announced that a meeting will be called the early part of next week, when the teams will be lined up and the schedule arranged. The teams, together with their respective captains, will be announced after the meeting of the committee next week.

FOUR BOYS SAVED FROM DROWNING IN LA CROSSE RIVER

Edward Lueth, Frank Kenney and Lou Saenger Pull Lads from River in Time

Edward Leuth, Frank Kenney and J. L. Saenger saved four boys from drowning in the La Crosse river near the mouth of Black river Saturday, when a small launch in which the lads were riding capsized.

Leuth and Kenney, who were fishing near by, witnessed the tip-over and hastened to the scene in their rowboat, pulling three of the boys out of the water. Mr. Saenger rowed out from his skiff ferry and saved the fourth boy. All of the boys were nearly exhausted when rescued and were given medical assistance after being landed.

Bayne Hurls Brilliant Victory for St. Louis

CLEVELAND, Sept. 18.—Cleveland retained its lead in the race for the American league penant by defeating Washington, 7 to 5, in one of the most exciting games of the season.

Cleveland errors twice gave Washington the chance to tie the score. Despite the loose fielding Caldwell pitched masterly ball, retiring the side on strikes in the seventh. The Indians made seven of their nine hits and three of their four pases ucont, while half of Washington's hits were wasted. Score:

CHICAGO—The Chicago White Sox tonight are firmly entrenched in second place in the American league pennant race as a result of defeating New York today for the third straight time, 15 to 9.

The game was played before the largest crowd that ever witnessed a game in Chicago, the spectators swarming on the playing field so that a hit into the crowd was good for only two bases.

Babe Ruth, who had hoped to bag his fiftieth home run, had a disastrous day at bat, getting only a single. He faced the trio of Chicago pitchers, Kerr, Faber and Cicotte, fourteen times in the three games and made only three hits, two of which were off Kerr and one off Cicotte. Today Ruth was passed once and on his next attempt he forced Jackson to run for a long fly. He fanned the next time up and on his fourth attempt sent a high fly to Strunk. His last time at bat he singled. Score:

BLACK RIVER FALLS MEET NELSONS TODAY AT COPELAND PARK

Locals Hope to Break Even With Up-Staters in Two Game Series

Fans will witness a fast baseball game at Copeland park today, when the Black River Falls sluggers come here for the second game of the season with the Nelson Clothing company.

Although the local team was defeated on the up-state diamond, through what was alleged to be an unfair decision on a play, last Sunday, they are intent on making good the record before the large crowd of La Crosse spectators that are expected to witness the game this afternoon. Members of the Nelson Clothing company team report that the Black River Falls battery is a stiff proposition, pointing to Nelson, catcher on the Falls aggregation, as the sensation of this neck of the woods. Smith, who hurled in excellent style for the up-staters last Sunday, will again be the mound-man for the visitors. Fitzke and Tanke will be seen in their regular positions in today's match.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR WEBBER-REYNOLDS TITLE MIX COMPLETE

American Champion Welterweight Grappler to Meet Local Challenger Monday

Final arrangements are complete for the Webber-Reynolds championship wrestling match to be held at the Yeomen hall tomorrow evening. Reynolds arrived in town yesterday after a match with Joe Risburg at Vinton, Iowa, Friday night and will put on the finishing touches of his training here where fans will have an opportunity to see him.

Reynolds is the champion welterweight of America, and the long-heralded go with Webber Monday night will uncover the relative mat ability of the two grappers. Webber's record on the mat stands him in for a good chance of copping over the champion, having lost but two bouts in the past eight years, one of these being with a European champion with whom he stayed an hour and forty minutes for the first fall. Tickets for the match have been selling at fast rate and indications point to a large crowd of spectators.

"SONNY" BERG IS ELECTED MANAGER OF NORMAL GRIDDERS

Squad Given First Workout Yesterday Morning at Normal Field; Competition Keen

At a meeting of the football squad held yesterday, "Sonny" Berg was elected manager of the La Crosse Normal school football team for the coming year. "Sonny" needs no introduction to the football fans of La Crosse. He attended high school here and played on the football team at Normal for three years.

The squad got its first real workout of the season yesterday morning at Normal field. The men were run through a snappy drill consisting of forward passing and recovering the ball. Part of the equipment has already been issued and the rest is expected soon. The practice will begin in earnest as soon as the rest of the stuff arrives.

Though the opening game of the season is only two weeks away, the prospects look good for the Normalites. The first game is to be played with St. Thomas on October 2. This has always been one of the stiffest games of the season.

The competition for line positions promises to be keener than it has been for years. "Swede" Dahlgren has been out of the game for some time, but is in good condition. Schick, a former high school player, and later of the S. A. T. C. team at the University of Illinois, enrolled Friday and reported for practice. Kevin, Tonn, Lewis, Jonas, Warren and Oyen are among the huskies who will battle for line positions. "Nobby" Bott, a well known La Crosse athlete, was out in uniform yesterday.

LOCAL BOXER HOLDS BANTAMWEIGHT TITLE OF WISCONSIN "U"

Charles H. White, student at the University of Wisconsin last year, holds the bantamweight championship title of the institution as a result of defeating Miller, formerly interstate champion of all colleges. White stopped his opponent in the third round of the match. He was presented with a medal by the University of Wisconsin.

MEET THE "S & H" FOOTBALL TEAM

La Crosse is to have a new football team. Word comes from the "S & H" cigar store that recruits and old time veterans of the game are being mustered into the "S & H" service and that enlistments for a complete unit will be secured within a few days. Men of the type of Leo Cassidy, popular soda shooter at the store, are being sought in an effort to form a line that will withstand the gruelling attacks of the opponents. The initial practice of the club will be held at the Hood street playground this morning, when a captain and manager will be elected. "S & H" is the name selected for the squad.

DODGERS MAINTAIN LEAD OF FIVE IN NATIONAL LEAGUE

La Crosse Favorites Can Clinch Pennant by Winning Seven of Nine Remaining Games

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Brooklyn's lead in the National league penant race was cut to five games over New York today when Cincinnati won the last game of the series from the Superbas and New York defeated Pittsburgh.

The Cleveland Americans made it three straight from Washington today and are one and a half games ahead of Chicago, which ousted New York from second place by taking the third straight game from the Yankees.

Brooklyn can clinch first place by winning seven of its nine remaining games, while Cincinnati and New York, which start a four game series at the Polo grounds tomorrow, are winning all of their contests. The Giants have thirteen games to play and the Reds sixteen.

Cleveland has a distinct advantage in the American race, for if the Indians break even in their fourteen remaining games, in order to tie them Chicago would have to wine seven out of eleven, and New York seven out of ten.

IMMIGRATION SHATTERS ALL RECORDS; 9,000 SOME DAYS!

NEW YORK—On two days recently arrivals at Ellis Island from Europe reached the 9000 mark, shattering all immigration records. If this rate is held up for a year, the arrivals would total 3,285,000—double the number of any previous year. "They are refugees," says Louis Post assistant secretary of labor. "They are running from war, disease, famine and privation." The record for arrivals is 1914. In that year 1,218,480 imigrants arrived in America. The picture shows a family which has just arrived at Ellis Island from Europe and is waiting for a decision on entrance to the United States.

Badger Legislature Puts Into Law Twenty-one of Thirty-one Suggestions

CHICAGO.—Wisconsin leads the states in the number of uniform acts that it has adopted as put forth by the national conference of commissioners on uniform state laws, according to a summary by E. A. Gilmore, of Madison, Wis., secretary of the conference.

Of 30 uniform acts submitted by the commissioners. Wisconsin has adopted 21. Massachusetts stands next with 12.

Wisconsin is also the first state to enact all the legislation relative to marriage and divorce drawn by the commissioners.

The uniform which has been most favored is the negotiable instruments act. This has been adopted in all jurisdictions except Georgia and Porto Rico.

Two proposed uniform acts have not as yet been adopted by any state. They are the table of weights and measures and the insurance policies act.

More legislation dealing with marriage and divorces has been proposed than on any other subject. Action by states on these acts follows: Migratory divorce acts adopted by none; divorce procedure acts adopted by Delaware; marriage license act by Massachusetts; marriage evasion act by Illinois, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Vermont; annulment of marriage and divorce act, by Delaware and New Jersey.

A uniform family desertion act has been adopted by Alabama, Kansas, Massachusetts, Mississippi, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Vermont, West Virginia, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

The flag law submitted byt the conference has been enacted in Arizona, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Washington and Wisconsin.

COMMERCIAL FISHING AND CLAMMING ALMOST STOPPED IN THIS SECTION OF RIVER

As a result of rigorous regulations prescribed for the conservation of clams and fish by the federal government and fish and game departments of Minnesota and Wisconsin, clammers and commercial fishermen find their operations almost at a standstill along this section of the Mississippi river.

Five years ago one could walk to the river bank in La Crosse at any time of the day and see a dozen clamming outfits in operation within two miles. At the same time one had to walk only a mile or two to find a half dozen seines of commercial fishermen, stretched out in the sun to dry or being loaded onto or unloaded from boats.

Industry Threatened

Then came the time when button manufacturers complained that the clam shell industry on the upper river would shortly be wiped out unless steps were taken to protect the young mussels and prevent the extinction of the species.

As a result of the demand for conservation of the supply, the fish and game departments of Minnesota and Wisconsin designated certain long stretches of water in which clammers are not permitted to drag their hooks for a period of three years. This restricted clamming operations to small stretches of water in which operations are being carried on under a minor scale this year.

Fishing Curtailed

The last Wisconsin legislature made it possible for the conservation commission of Wisconsin further to curtail the operations of commercial fishermen by prohibiting seining in certain sloughs, lakes and bayous adjacent to the Mississippi, north and south of La Crosse, and as a result there is practically no net fishing in this locality during the spring and fall. In the winter carp and buffalo may be found occasionally in schools, under the ice in the main river, and profitable hauls may then be made.

Closing of Black river and sloughs tributary to the Mississippi in this vicinity, to commercial fishermen, deprived them of a rich field of activity, but on the other hand, it is maintained, hook and line fishermen find their sport greatly improved in these waters.
